The well stocked garden grounds are mainly laid to lawn with traditional stone and timber fencing defining the boundaries. To the rear, a timber shed houses the biomass boiler system. Stone chipped pathways and established flowering borders meander around the cottage, leading to generous garden areas arranged over two levels. A mixture of trees and shrubs are planted throughout, providing privacy and habitat for birds. Gated access and pathways lead around the property, with two elevated seating areas perfectly positioned to enjoy the surroundings and capture sunlight throughout the day. Additional features include a whirligig for outdoor drying and an outside tap.

Location

The property is situated on the southern shores of Loch Awe. The plot enjoys superb views to Loch Awe and towards Ben Cruachan, and with zero light pollution, there are dramatic and spectacular sunsets and wonderful opportunities for viewing the night sky. Loch Awe is one of Scotland's most spectacular lochs. It is 25 miles long and runs from the village of Loch Awe in the north to Ford at the south. The nearby Kilchurn Castle is a dramatic ruin, and one of Scotland's most famous and most photographed castles. There are several islands in the loch including Innishail, which is the burial island of the Dukes of Argyll. Inveraray Castle, the seat of the Dukes of Argyll, is at the head of Loch Fyne, 13 miles to the south. There is spectacular hillwalking, climbing and mountaineering in the area, with skiing at Glencoe. The numerous lochs and rivers provide both salmon fishing and trout fishing and the Ardbrecknish boatyard, 300 metres away, provides sailing facilities for your own boat. Some of the local estates run commercial shoots as well as allowing stalking by prior arrangement. The mountains and glens are an area of spectacular natural beauty and a photographer's dream. Loch Awe village (9 miles) has a small railway station on the Glasgow to Oban line and a post office and general store. Dalmally (10 miles) is slightly larger and has a primary school, doctor's surgery, pharmacy, post office, village store and railway station. Inveraray (13 miles) is at the head of Loch Fyne and has a variety of shops, hotels and tourist locations. Oban is 31 miles distant and has a full range of shops and supermarkets, secondary schooling and professional services. Oban has the ferry terminal to the Western Isles and is the main base for exciting west coast sailing. Glasgow airport is about a 90-minute drive, under normal travel conditions.
