Location

Corsham Road lies on the outskirts of The National Trust village of Lacock which dates back to the 13th-century and remains largely unchanged over the centuries with its many limewashed, half-timbered and stone houses. Bowden Hill itself offers two public houses and the village has four further public houses, a church and a shop/post office. A wider range of facilities can be found in the nearby town of Chippenham which offers supermarkets, a sports centre and a public library together with a mainline railway station (London-Paddington). There is good access to major motor commuting routes including the M4 motorway at Junction 17.
