Methera

In 1827 James Branker, a successful sugar merchant from Liverpool purchased what was then the Croft Estate, a typical Cumbrian farmstead fronting the River Brathay. He gradually demolished the farm buildings, replacing them with The Croft, the rather elegant property still seen immediately to the east together with this pretty little courtyard alongside which at the time provided servants quarters, stables and dairy serving the grand house. Over the years The Croft has seen service as a convalescent home for wounded soldiers during the First World War, a prep school during the Second World War and was subsequently a hotel catering for the developing post war tourist trade. In the 1960's the courtyard buildings were sold off and converted, as was The Croft itself in the 1970's which is now converted into apartments. Croft Courtyard is a Grade 2 listed building.

Kitchen

Entering into the open plan kitchen and living area, the front door is framed by glass panelling to let in plenty of natural light. The kitchen comprises integrated appliances for maximised functionality, including an oven with 4 ring induction hob, fridge, dishwasher, and an inset stainless steel sink. Soft close wall and base units and marble effect laminate worktops create a clean and polished look, without sacrificing the cottage's charisma. This open plan space is stylishly decorated throughout, with wood effect laminate flooring and part-tiled walls, and a high ceiling to give the ground floor a large, spacious feel.

Stairs lead up to the first floor landing, with an under-stair cupboard to provide additional storage.

Living Area

Bedroom 1 features two sash windows, offering pleasant views over the cobbled courtyard and Lakeland slate buildings, and to the fields and fells beyond. A functional corner cupboard houses the Glow Worm boiler, and offers extra storage. Bedroom 2 enjoys the same fell views from the sash window, and is currently used as another double bedroom, with potential to become a quiet home office. Across the landing is the bathroom, with a white three-piece suite including a WC, pedestal wash hand basin and bath with shower over. The modern chrome heated towel rail will ensure you are kept cosy all year round.

Across the road are the serene communal gardens fronting the River Brathay, a sanctuary for local wildlife and a place of tranquillity from which you can access Lake Windermere via kayak or canoe for example.

Landing

With central Ambleside just about a mile away, an easy stroll after a day out, and with more challenging hikes such as the Fairfield Horseshoe for example all being achievable from the doorstep, Methera could become your ideal lock up and leave weekend retreat, a fantastic holiday let or permanent home.
