Bishop Field's 3,000+ square feet includes period elegance and a beautifully established setting. From the outset, the property has a strong sense of presence, combining traditional architectural detailing with carefully considered decoration and a wealth of character throughout. Ground floor accommodation is arranged around a series of generously proportioned reception rooms, complemented by decorative ceiling plasterwork with glazed internal doors connecting adjoining rooms, which create a versatile home equally suited to family life, entertaining and relaxed country living.

The Living Room is an exceptional reception space, distinguished by its generous proportions and excellent natural light. Large double-aspect windows draw the surrounding gardens into the room, while an attractive fireplace provides a natural focal point.

The Sitting Room provides further generous accommodation, an attractive fireplace and large windows overlooking the gardens. A door opens directly onto the stone patio to the front of the house.

The Dining Room has a particularly warm and inviting character, with space for a substantial dining table. Polished timber flooring, an attractive fireplace and dual aspect windows combine to create an elegant yet comfortable space for entertaining.

The Study includes a fireplace and wood-burning stove, which add character and definition. With good proportions and plentiful natural light, the room could equally be used as a home office or further family room. The Study connects directly with the Dining Room and stairs, Kitchen, Utility Room and WC beyond.

The Kitchen/Breakfast Room combines traditional country-house style with modern living; fitted with an oil-fired Aga extensive range of cabinetry and work surfaces, centred around a substantial island, which provides additional preparation area and accommodates integrated electrical appliances. With ample space for a large breakfast table this is a natural hub for everyday family life.

Completing the ground floor is a WC and a Utility/Cloak Room with Kitchen Maid and access to the back door.

On the first floor, the principal bedroom combines scale, character and an abundance of natural light. Large windows overlook the surrounding grounds and create a wonderful sense of openness, while the generous floor area allows considerable flexibility.

The remaining bedrooms are equally well proportioned, with large windows providing excellent natural light and a variety of decorative treatments adding individuality to each room.

The second bedroom is particularly spacious with a double aspect overlooking the grounds. A further bedroom offers generous accommodation with its own individual style and en-suite, while another provides a charming and welcoming retreat and a warm, homely atmosphere.

The family bathroom is generous in scale and continues the traditional character found throughout the house. The bath sits alongside a separate glazed double-shower enclosure, wash basin and WC, complemented by traditional-style fittings, white wall tiling, darker detailing and a patterned tiled floor. Large windows provide excellent natural light while reinforcing the character of the room.

The Hobby Room completes the first floor accommodation.

The spacious central area of The Landing includes a cast iron spiral staircase leading to the top floor. The spiral staircase lands in a unique space providing a storage and/or play area together with access to a bedroom and loft.

The Top Floor Bedroom has a distinctive character with exposed roof timbers and sloping ceilings creating an atmospheric and versatile space. Roof-level windows and Velux provide natural light.

The Loft Room provides substantial 'attic storage' with lights and multiple power points together with access to the large Roof Terrace.

The Roof Terrace is a particular highlight, having commanding views from an exceptional elevated outlook across the surrounding countryside. This is a truly special space from which to appreciate the property's setting, whether enjoying morning coffee, star gazing or simply taking in the changing landscape throughout the seasons.

The gardens and grounds are an important part of Bishop Field, extending around the house and creating an attractive, mature and wonderfully private setting. Generous areas of lawn are framed by established borders, mature trees and varied planting.

Crossing the sweeping drive leads to The Dell, which includes a large grassed area, trees and a generous space used for herb and vegetable growing. The Dell completes a succession of appealing views and a strong connection with the surrounding countryside.
