An exciting opportunity to acquire a generous plot with previously approved planning permission for a substantial five-bedroom home extending to approximately 4,090 sqft (STM). While the original permission has now expired, the precedent is in place to support a future application, providing a sound starting point for your vision. Set in the rural surrounds of Hempnall, this is a well-placed opportunity to deliver a spacious, high-spec home in a village location where demand remains steady for quality countryside living. With groundwork already in place and scope for modern design, ensuite bedrooms, and generous living areas, the plot offers strong potential for personal use or future resale, subject to the right finish and planning. Opportunities like this are increasingly rare in this part of Norfolk.

Set on a generous plot, the site includes a partially erected steel framework and laid foundations, representing a significant early-stage investment already in place. The existing structure offers clear build direction while allowing flexibility for modern layouts or upgraded specifications. Its rural setting brings a sense of privacy and space, with ample room to incorporate features such as multiple parking bays, detached garaging, or garden buildings. Landscaped gardens can also be created to suit individual preferences or buyer expectations. For developers or self-build investors, the prior planning history strengthens the case for reapplication and adds confidence to the site's development potential.
