ANCASTER is a village and civil parish in the South Kesteven district of Lincolnshire, England, on the site of a Roman town. The civil parish includes the settlements of Sudbrook and West Willoughby.

Located just off the A153, the village is handy for Sleaford, Grantham and Lincoln, the North and South via the A1, and there is a high speed train link to London King's Cross in just over an hour from Grantham Railway Station.

Among its amenities are a Church of England primary school, a butcher, Coop shop, a small railway station on the Nottingham–Skegness line, a post office, petrol station and public house. There is a sports and social club associated with the playing field, which hosts Ancaster Cricket Club. West of the village is Woodland Waters, a holiday park with fishing and camping site, which has a restaurant, bar and venue. There are also two nearby nature reserves, each a Site of Special Scientific Interest. The village's Grade I listed Anglican parish church is dedicated to St Martin.
