LOCATION

Little Eversden is a charming and much-admired village situated approximately six miles south-west of Cambridge, surrounded by scenic open countryside while remaining conveniently accessible to the A603, A428 and M11. Its location makes it an excellent choice for those commuting into Cambridge, London, or further afield. The village has a welcoming, community-focused atmosphere, with amenities including a village hall, parish church, and a popular local pub. A wider range of facilities can be found in the nearby villages of Bourn, Comberton and Harlton, offering shops, cafés, public houses, and schools. The area is particularly well regarded for access to highly rated educational establishments, both state and independent, within Cambridge and the surrounding area. For those commuting to London, the nearest mainline railway stations are located in Foxton and Shepreth, both around six miles away, providing regular direct services to London King's Cross. Royston station is also easily accessible, offering fast and frequent services to London King's Cross and St Pancras, with journey times from approximately 36 minutes.
