In Detail

Occupying the ground floor of a handsome Victorian brick-fronted building, this thoughtfully renovated two bedroom maisonette pairs carefully preserved period detail with a calm, contemporary palette.

A private entrance, framed by a pretty stained-glass door, opens into a series of light-filled interiors arranged around a generous central hall.

The reception room is particularly inviting: high ceilings, stripped timber floorboards and large replacement wooden sash windows create a warm and elegant atmosphere, with excellent natural light throughout the day. Neutral tones and well-considered finishes continue into the hallway, where bespoke storage and ample proportions allow space for dining or reading.

The kitchen has been designed with simplicity and practicality in mind, combining clean white cabinetry with beech worktops and integrated appliances. Both bedrooms are quietly positioned, lending themselves equally well to guest accommodation, shared living or home working. The second bedroom, overlooking the garden through a picture window, is especially versatile and retains an attractive tiled fireplace.

To the rear, the private south-west-facing garden has been professionally landscaped as a series of intimate outdoor spaces. Timber-edged planting beds, mature shrubs and layered greenery create a tranquil setting, while two distinct seating areas make the most of the afternoon and evening sun.

Tremaine Road is well placed for access to four mainline rail connections, offering straightforward routes into central London. Nearby, Crystal Palace Park provides extensive green space and recreational facilities, while the surrounding area offers a selection of independent shops and everyday amenities. Several well regarded schools are also within easy reach, including Stewart Fleming Primary School.
