

LOMAS 14 · VILLA FÉNIX

📍 Mijas Pueblo, Málaga

Villa Fénix emerges as a contemporary sanctuary, nestled between the white mountains of Mijas Pueblo and the azure horizon of the Mediterranean Sea. A place where modern architecture converges with the serenity of natural materials, creating a dialogue between tranquility, light, and texture. The interior design concept is centered on recapturing the essence of the home as a sanctuary. The aim is to craft a space that breathes authenticity, where every element evokes a connection to the land, to nature, and to the Andalusian setting. Villa Fénix symbolizes rebirth—a new beginning built from the essential. The objective is to create a home that inspires, embraces, and integrates with its environment, honoring the Mediterranean identity while celebrating the beauty of simplicity.

INTERIOIR DESIGN

DESIGN FROM THE ROOT,
LIVE IN SERENITY.

Warm woods, local stone, linen, lime, and artisanal ceramics will be the protagonists of a palette that blends the organic and the contemporary. Each room will be conceived as a private sanctuary, where time slows and well-being flows naturally.

#bbb6ab

#ddd9d0

#482a1d

#1d1d1d

#d3cec5

PROPOSED MATERIALS

REFUGIO

The harmonization of color with the environment is essential for a space such as Villa Fénix to serve as a true refuge and become one with its landscape. This extends beyond mere aesthetics; it is about crafting a sensory and emotional experience that connects profoundly with nature and a sense of home. A refuge must be a sanctuary of peace, and color is the foundational element in achieving this. The hues that amplify this atmosphere contribute directly to the concept of "well-being that flows naturally."

The house appears to emerge from the earth, or to belong to it. This is not only aesthetically pleasing, but it also reinforces the idea of a home in harmony with nature, a place that respects its environment. Adopting these colors is not merely a nod to authenticity; it allows for the use of native materials that, by their very nature, already possess these hues. This reinforces the idea of reclaiming the essence of the home as a sanctuary and evoking a connection with the land, nature, and the Andalusian environment.

FENIX

Exteriors

MEDITERRANEAN FOREST

HONNE

ESSENCIA

Neutrality

Connection

Nature

Personality

craftsmanship

Mediterranean

warmth

immersion

sunlight

restoration

Villa Fernis

Design from the root, live from the calm.

history

Each element is part of the history of mijas and its saw, so they will be carefully selected

Moodboard

Built to Belong

Mijas Pueblo preserves the white and luminous essence of the most authentic Andalusia. Its whitewashed streets, its slow pace and its natural environment make this place a privileged enclave to connect with the calm and beauty of the Mediterranean.

The villa sits on the slopes of the mountain, from where open endless views of the sea and the valley. This environment, surrounded by pines, olive trees and stone, inspires an interior design that dialogues with the landscape: a design that seeks to integrate with nature and not compete with it.

Villa Fénix finds in Mijas its perfect balance: tradition and modernity, land and horizon, refuge and openness. A space where architecture merges with light and natural materials come to life in tune with the environment.