About The Property

Searching for a four bedroom bungalow within walking distance of Aberporth beach and village amenities, with flexible accommodation, off-road parking and a useful rear garden? This well-kept mid terraced home offers a practical single-storey layout, a good-sized kitchen, sunroom, two bath/shower rooms and an easy base for enjoying Cardigan Bay and the wider West Wales coast.

Set in the ever-popular coastal village of Aberporth, this four bedroom property offers a really practical layout, good everyday living space and a position that works well for anyone wanting to be within reach of the beach, local shops and village amenities. It is the sort of property that could suit a range of buyers, whether for family use, single-storey living with extra rooms for guests or hobbies, or simply as a well-placed home close to Cardigan Bay in West Wales.

The property is approached via steps up to the front porch, which provides a useful first impression and plenty of room for boots, coats and day-to-day storage. From here, a door opens into the main hallway, where there is an airing cupboard housing the hot water tank, loft access with very handy storage space, and doors leading off to the main rooms. The layout is straightforward and functional, which is often exactly what makes a bungalow work so well.

The lounge/diner is a comfortable central room with wooden flooring and space for both seating and a dining table. It feels like a room that can cope well with everyday life, with enough flexibility for family meals, evenings in or entertaining friends without things feeling squeezed. French doors connect through to the kitchen, helping the two rooms work nicely together while still keeping a bit of separation.

Details Continued:

The kitchen sits to the rear and is fitted with matching wall and base units, along with a breakfast bar that adds useful informal dining space and extra worktop area. There is an eye level electric oven and grill, an electric hob with extractor, built-in dishwasher, space for a freestanding fridge freezer and a sink with drainer. It is a good practical room with a layout that makes sensible use of the space, and it links well to the rear part of the property.

Off the kitchen is the sunroom, which is a really useful addition. With sliding patio doors out to the garden and further access into the main bedroom, it offers flexibility beyond simply being an extra sitting area. It would work well for morning coffee, reading space, extra storage for coats and shoes, or somewhere to sit looking out onto the garden.

Also off the kitchen is the laundry room, fitted with a sink and drainer, cupboards beneath, and space and plumbing for a washing machine. This is the kind of practical space that makes a real difference in day-to-day use, keeping laundry and household tasks slightly separate from the kitchen itself. From here there is access to the shower room, fitted with a corner shower, WC and wash hand basin, along with a door into the inner hallway.

The bedroom arrangement is one of the strongest parts of the layout, giving a nice sense of separation between rooms. From the main hallway there are two bedrooms and the family bathroom. One bedroom is a good-sized single with a Velux window, while the other is a small double with a built-in wardrobe. The family bathroom is fitted with a bath with shower over, WC and wash hand basin, along with useful shelving storage.

From the inner hallway there are two further double bedrooms. One includes a Velux window and built-in wardrobe, while the main bedroom benefits from sliding patio doors opening into the sunroom, giving it a slightly more private feel and an added sense of connection to the rear garden. Altogether, the four bedroom layout gives this bungalow a flexibility that is not always easy to find, particularly so close to the coast.

Externally:

Outside, the property continues to offer plenty of practical appeal. To the front there is parking for two vehicles on a mix of gravel and concrete driveway, with a path and steps leading to the front door. For a property in a popular seaside village, parking is a genuine plus.

A path at the end of the row provides access around to the rear of the bungalow. The rear garden can also be reached directly from the sunroom and is arranged with a path and steps up to the main garden area. There is a patio to one side, a lawned section to the other, and a very useful good sized garden shed/workshop with power and lighting at the rear. A second patio area sits beside the shed, creating another seating spot, and there is also a gate leading out to the rear path. The overall garden space feels manageable rather than demanding, while still giving enough room for sitting out, gardening or general family use.

For anyone looking for a well-positioned bungalow with four bedrooms, practical living space and a coastal village location, this is a property that makes a lot of sense. Early viewing would be recommended to appreciate the space, layout and convenience on offer.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AREA:

Aberporth remains one of the most sought-after coastal villages in this part of Ceredigion, and it is easy to see why. The village has a strong year-round feel, good local amenities and a well-known beach that draws people back again and again. Being able to walk down to the beach and make the most of the Cardigan Bay coastline is a real part of the appeal here, while nearby Cardigan and the surrounding West Wales coast add even more to the setting.
