The end of the Victorian period represented a celebration of the wonderful industrial achievement and an era of renowned architecture that at the denouncement of the monarch would continue to be admired throughout the decades. The Ash Hotel, completed in 1901, a handsome building built with stock brick, stone mullion windows and expertly tooled masonry work, including a decorative panel christening the building.

The Ash began life as a hotel and hostelry transitioned to popular tea rooms in recent years before being acquired by JC Brennan, bespoke craftsman builders renowned for the quality of their work and superlative finishes. The complete project designed by Cartwright & Gross noted local architects, is nine luxury apartments, each one unique with a combination of penthouse, duplexes, one garden unit and some of the largest high end apartments you will find in South Manchester. The clean all electric heating systems and fully fitted kitchens with high end appliances sit beautifully within the longed for living areas set within landscaped gated grounds.

The location offers ease of access to the motorways, international airport, local railway station as well as town and city centre with regular bus routes on the doorstep.
