TEDSMORE HALL

Built in 1768 for Richard Bulkeley-Hatchett and later remodelled in the mid-19th century for Thomas Bulkeley-Owen, Tedsmore Hall offers a substantial and truly special country house, with westerly views through an avenue of mature chestnut trees to the Welsh mountains. The Hall was entirely refurbished prior to the current ownership and boasts 12 bedrooms and a Gross Internal Area of approximately 1,436.65 square metres (15,464 square feet).

The house is approached via a sweeping driveway, through its mature gardens and has a parking and turning area to the western elevation.

Internally the property offers spacious and comfortable accommodation, with a range of reception rooms which are perfect for entertaining (the three principle reception rooms can be combined and used as a single entertaining space), a modern kitchen and breakfast room and sympathetically refurbished period features, including vaulted plaster ceilings, marble and stone fireplaces and an impressive panelled hallway with a carved wooden battle scene, reminiscent of Michelangelo's 'Battle of the Centaurs' carving.

A spur off the main driveway leads into the property's rear courtyard, via the 4-centred sandstone arch, with the Bulkeley-Owen family coat of arms. Here, there are a range of outbuildings, including a converted estate office and garages. In total there are 4 offices available, with space available for more.

The Hall sits within extensive grounds, with sweeping lawns, a ha-ha feature and a well-stocked arboretum. The diverse collection includes exotic and native species including Cedar of Lebanon, Cherry, Weeping Pear, Wellingtonia, Spanish Chestnut, Davidia, Oak, Yew, Californian Redwood, various bamboos and Rhododendrons. The property has a 2-acre walled garden with a listed icehouse to the north. There is direct access from the Hall to the further owned pastureland and woodland.

TOP LODGE

At the main entrance to the Hall is Top Lodge, an attractive 2-bedroom lodge house, set within a good sized garden, with its own separate access. The property is currently let on an Assured Shorthold Tenancy Agreement.

THE STABLE YARD

The former stable yard has recently been converted into 14 residential units (10 with planning restricted to holiday lets) in three buildings. Overall the accommodation provides 54 ensuite bedrooms, and there is an additional substantial portal framed barn with planning permission granted for use as a leisure suite. Currently all 14 units are being used as holiday lets.

The owner's Profit and Loss projections show a future turnover of circa £1,500,000 and an EBITDA of approximately £900,000 per annum. If these figures are achieved, the future value of the portfolio will be significantly enhanced.

The stable yard complex has been tastefully landscaped and sustainably developed. Heat is provided by a ground source heating system (Renewable Heat Incentive payments are received). The electricity is supplemented by a solar array and there is battery storage. The investment in the energy system cost in the region of £600,000.

ADDITIONAL LAND AND AMENITY

In addition to the gardens and grounds, The Tedsmore Hall Estate offers areas of pastureland and amenity woodland extending to 74.64 acres in total with a 1.8km cross country woodland track. There are some small outlying woodland blocks, which were retained for sporting use. If sold separately, 32.74 acres will be included with Tedsmore Hall.

MINERAL, SPORTING AND TIMBER RIGHTS

As far as they are owned the mineral, sporting and timber rights are included in the freehold sale.

Sporting rights are retained over approximately 900 acres of land.
