Thorrington, located in the CO7 postcode area, is a charming rural village set within the attractive North Essex countryside, close to the historic town of Colchester and the coastal areas of the Tendring Peninsula. The village offers a peaceful setting while still benefiting from a range of local amenities, including a village hall, church, and nearby public houses, with additional everyday facilities available in the neighbouring villages of Great Bentley and Alresford, such as shops, schools, and a railway station.

Thorrington is well placed for access to Colchester, Britain's oldest recorded town, which provides a wide range of shopping, leisure, and educational facilities, as well as access to the A12 trunk road. This connects easily to the A14, London, and the wider motorway network. Rail services from nearby Alresford railway station and Great Bentley railway station offer convenient links to London Liverpool Street, making the area suitable for commuters.

The surrounding countryside and coastline provide excellent recreational opportunities, with walking and cycling routes, nature reserves, and sailing along the nearby River Colne estuary. Golf courses and leisure facilities can be found in and around Colchester, while the beaches at Frinton-on-Sea and Clacton-on-Sea are within easy reach, offering a variety of seaside attractions.
