An impressive five-bedroom Victorian terraced house, with a classic exterior, presents a wonderful opportunity for a spacious and characterful home. Upon entering, you are welcomed into a generously sized through-reception room, flooded with natural light from a large bay window. The heart of the home lies in the large, sleek white kitchen/diner, a space enhanced by skylights that flood the area with daylight. Perfectly designed for modern living, this room seamlessly opens out to the north-northwest facing rear paved garden, ideal for outdoor enjoyment. Ascending the staircase, the original dado rail in the hall and on the stairs immediately catches the eye, a testament to the home's Victorian heritage. The first floor hosts the primary bedroom, benefiting from both a bay window and an additional window, ensuring a bright and airy feel. Two further good-sized bedrooms and a family shower room complete this floor. The thoughtfully designed loft conversion provides a large bedroom with integrated storage, as well as an additional smaller bedroom and a three-piece bathroom.

Residents of this sought-after family neighbourhood enjoy a strong sense of community. Its proximity to Walthamstow Village means easy access to the array of shops and eateries on Orford Road and the diverse offerings of Hoe Street. Excellent transport links are within easy reach, with Walthamstow Central tube station just a short stroll away, providing swift connections into central London. Local amenities such as the popular Hucks coffee shop and the green space of Wingfield Park are also nearby. The proximity to good schools is a significant advantage for families, making this an exceptional home in a desirable part of Walthamstow.
