Leigh-on-Mendip is a small, welcoming village in Somerset, nestled within the rolling landscape of the Mendip Hills, a designated Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. The surrounding countryside offers open farmland, wildflower meadows and ancient woodland, home to deer, owls, badgers and buzzards. Walkers and nature lovers have direct access to a network of public footpaths and bridleways, with highlights such as Asham Wood, Cranmore Tower and the East Mendip Way offering panoramic views across the Somerset Levels towards Glastonbury Tor and just three miles from Babington House.

The village itself centres around the historic 16th-century Bell pub and the Grade I listed 14th-century church of St Giles. Community life is active, with the Memorial Hall hosting classes, clubs and events ranging from zumba and tai chi to a weekly village lunch and an annual Family Day. The Parish Rangers help maintain the village and welcome volunteers.

Education is well provided for: the local primary school is rated Good by OFSTED, and there are several highly regarded state and independent schools nearby, including Wells Cathedral School, Downside, All Hallows and Millfield.

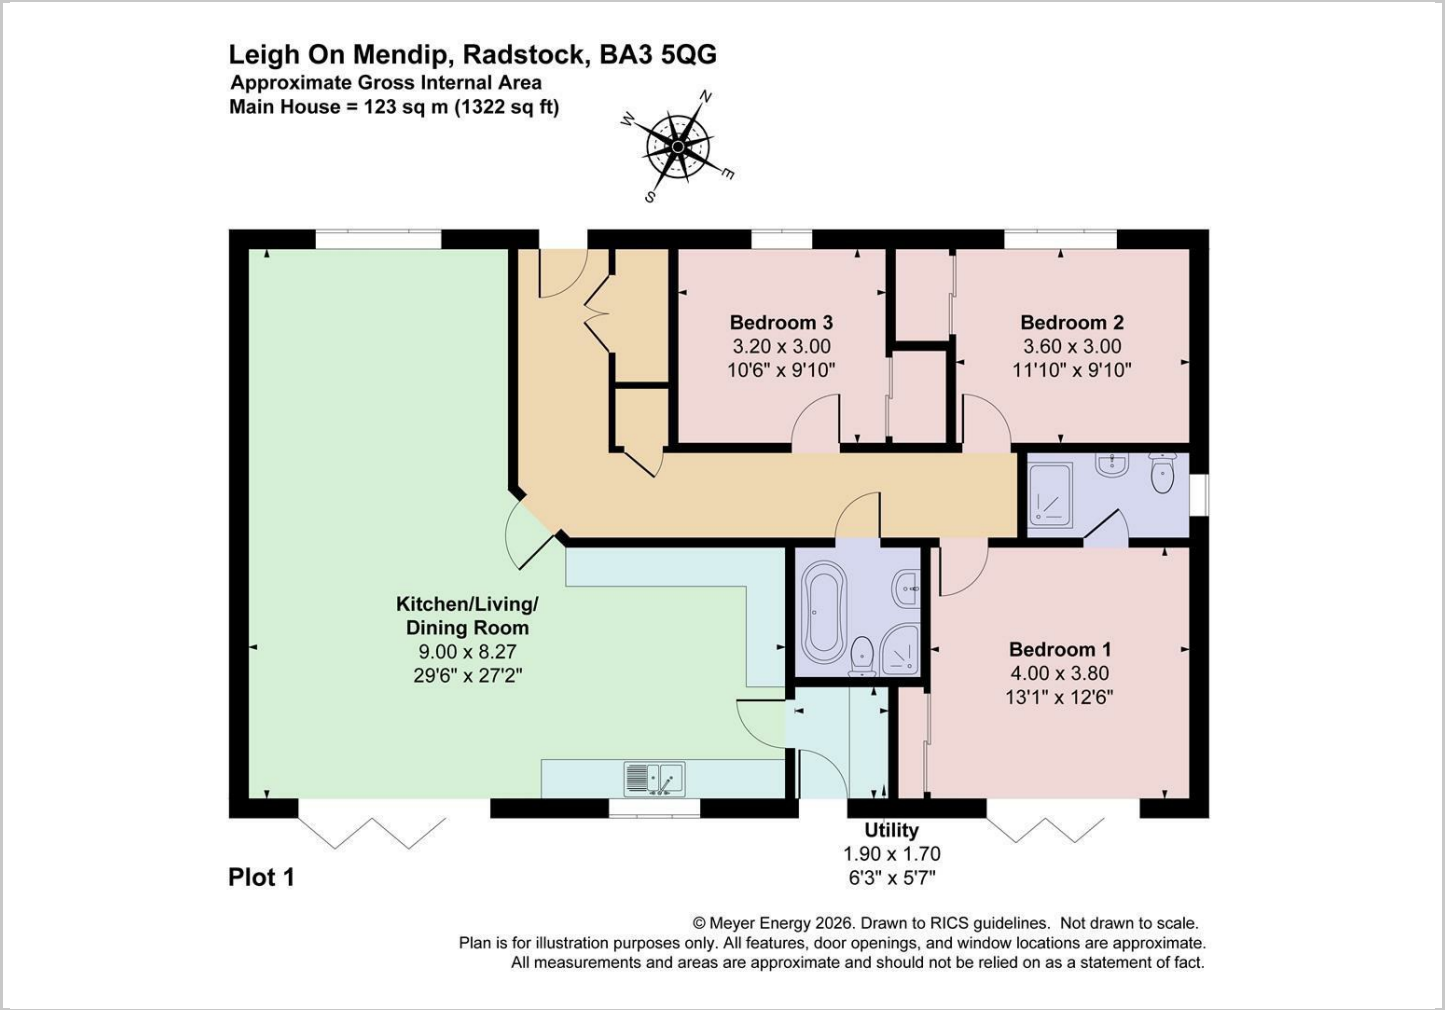

Although it feels rural and tranquil, Leigh-on-Mendip is conveniently situated between Frome, Shepton Mallet and Radstock, with Wells only 10 miles away and the cities of Bath and Bristol within easy reach.
