TENURE & COUNCIL TAX BAND

Freehold - We cannot verify the Tenure of the property as we do not have access to the documentation. Purchasers must ask their legal advisor to confirm the Tenure.

Title contains restrictions or restrictive covenants.

Here is a summary but a property lawyer can advise further: - From the Conveyance dated 8 November 1976 (Third Schedule): Not to erect any building other than no more than three detached bungalow-type houses (with or without necessary outbuildings) on the land. Plain English: you cannot build more than three bungalows and cannot build other types of buildings. - From the same Conveyance: Not to use the land except for building the said dwellings and the access road to them. Plain English: the land must be used only for the approved housing development and its access, not for other business or uses. - From the same Conveyance: The dwellings must be used only as private homes and nothing should be done on the land that would be a nuisance to the vendors or their successors (neighbouring retained land owners). Plain English: the houses must be private residences and you must not cause disturbance or problems that affect the neighbouring retained land owners. - From the same Conveyance: To erect a post and three-rail fence 4 feet high between the points marked X-Y on the plan; that fence is the property of the vendors. Plain English: there is a required fence of a specified type and height along the north-west boundary, and the vendors (or their successors) own that fence. - From the Conveyance dated 8 December 1976 (provision): The fence separating this site and site No.2 is a party fence and must be used and maintained accordingly. Plain English: the boundary fence between this property and site No.2 is shared; responsibility for keeping it in repair is shared between the neighbouring owners (a "party fence" means both sides share upkeep). - Mines and minerals are excepted (registered note). Plain English: the owner of the surface does not own the mines and minerals under the land; those rights have been kept by someone else (so extraction rights are not included). - Transfer to the current owners contains a covenant to observe and perform the covenants in the Charges Register and to indemnify in respect of them. Plain English: the current owners have promised to follow the restrictions above and to pay any costs if they break them.

Title contains beneficial rights or easements.

Here is a summary but a property lawyer can advise further:- From the Conveyance dated 8 December 1976 (Part 1 - rights granted): Full right at all times to pass and repass, with or without vehicles, along the roadway shown on the plan between the highway and the retained land, subject to payment of a one quarter share of the cost of maintaining and repairing that roadway until the highway authority adopts it. Plain English: there is a shared private access route you have the right to use; you must pay one quarter of its upkeep until it becomes a public road. - From the same Conveyance (Part 1): The right to enter the retained land to lay, maintain, inspect and renew drains, pipes, cables, wires and watercourses necessary for developing and then enjoying the property as a home. Plain English: you (or those entitled) can go onto the neighbouring retained land (sites 1 and 2) to install or repair services that serve your property. - From the same Conveyance (Part 2 - rights reserved to the vendor for the benefit of retained land): The vendor and successors have the right for up to 80 years (from 1976, i.e. until 2056) to the passage and running of water and soil through any sewers, drains and water pipes in or under this property, together with rights to repair, maintain and reinstate them, and rights of light and air for the retained land. Plain English: neighbouring retained plots (sites 1 and 2) are allowed to use the drains and pipes that run through this property and can enter to repair them; they also have protected rights to light and air that might limit what you can build that would block their light. - From the Conveyance dated 8 November 1976 (Second Schedule - affecting the land in this title): The vendors (owners of the plot shown edged blue, being 4 Stoneleigh) have reserved for 80 years from 1976 the right to the passage and running of water and soil through sewers, drains and water pipes in or under this property, with rights to repair and maintain them, and rights of light and air for 4 Stoneleigh. Plain English: the owner of 4 Stoneleigh can use and maintain drains running through this property and has rights to light and air which could restrict building that would block their light; these particular rights last until 2056.
