About The Property

Looking for a characterful country property with no onward chain, no close neighbours, a real flexibility, useful outbuildings, around 8.42 acres and striking far-reaching views towards Bannau Brycheiniog National Park? This well-presented stone barn conversion comes with a detached Hobby/Playroom barn, and a substantial garage/workshop barn with potential for holiday let use subject to the necessary permissions, solar panels and private bore hole water for semi off-grid living, and a setting that feels properly rural while still keeping Llandovery and the A40 within easy reach.

Set near the borders of the Bannau Brycheiniog National Park, this beautifully presented late 18th century stone barn conversion offers a very appealing mix of character, space and versatility. With around 8.42 acres, a detached Hobby/Playroom barn, a substantial garage/workshop barn, an electric car charging point and glorious views stretching across the surrounding countryside, this is the sort of property that feels particularly hard to replace. It has genuine lifestyle appeal, but it also has practical substance behind it.

The setting is a real part of the story here. Access is from a small country lane onto the property's own private track, which leads up through a gate and into the grounds. From the moment the barns come into view, the outlook starts to do the work. The position gives a strong sense of space, with open countryside, valley views and distant hills forming the backdrop, while Crychan and Halfway Forests are close by for riding, walking and cycling. Despite the rural feel, the A40 is only around 2 miles away, with Llandovery roughly 4 miles distant.

The main house, converted around 2003 and improved further over the years, has been arranged to make the most of its natural light and its setting. The front door is reached by steps from the patio and opens into a generous hallway with stairs to the first floor, storage below, a WC and a useful utility room.

The utility is fitted with a sink and cupboards, has space and plumbing for a washing machine, and also houses the MasterTherm boiler and the underfloor heating manifolds for the ground floor.

From the hall, steps lead down into the main living space, and this is arguably the standout room in the house. It is open plan, but still feels nicely zoned, with the kitchen at one end, space for dining in the middle and the lounge area beyond. The room is filled with natural light from doors on either side, and the surrounding views are a constant feature. The kitchen is fitted with matching wall and base units, a central island and a good range of built-in appliances including an eye-level oven and grill, microwave above, dishwasher and fridge freezer. There is ample worktop space, room for a proper dining table, and the whole space works well for everyday life as well as for family gatherings and entertaining.

The lounge area adds warmth and character, with exposed beams, a vaulted ceiling and a wood-burning stove set on a raised hearth. There is also useful built-in corner storage with space above for a television. A front door opens out to the patio, although the area around this doorway would benefit from some finishing off, while the rear doors open onto the rear patio and garden where the views really come into their own.

Back from the hall, steps rise to a library/study with built-in shelving and storage, making it a very useful extra space for home working, reading or hobbies. A further short flight of steps leads to a corridor which gives access to two double bedrooms and the family bathroom. One of the bedrooms is currently used as a hobby room and has a door out to the side of the property, which adds flexibility. The family bathroom is well sized and fitted with a bath, separate shower, wash hand basin and WC. There is also a door from the corridor to the rear outside space.

On the first floor, the principal bedroom occupies a very good-sized area with useful built-in wardrobes and a bathroom close by fitted with bath, shower, wash hand basin and WC. The layout works well, giving the main bedroom a degree of separation from the other bedrooms without making the house feel disjointed.

Detached Garage/Workshop

Opposite the main house is the detached garage/workshop barn, and this is one of the features that makes the property stand out from many other country homes. It is currently arranged as a main workshop with double doors to the side, two smaller workshop or storage areas, adjoining store rooms and an upper mezzanine floor. With power, lighting and water connected, it already has plenty of practical use, whether for storage, projects, equipment or hobby use. It also offers clear potential for conversion to holiday letting accommodation, subject to the necessary planning permissions, which in my view makes it particularly interesting from both a lifestyle and income point of view.

Hobby/Playroom Barn

Further up the drive is another detached stone barn, converted as a Hobby/Playroom. This building includes an entrance hall housing the solar power inverter and battery storage, a studio room with wood-burning stove, double doors opening to the rear patio, and a shower room. It works well as an overflow from the main house, for use as a hobby room/play room, a home office or studio space. Having this second converted building already in place is a real advantage but please note, this building can only be used as a Hobby/Playroom.

Externally:

The grounds are another strong point. In all, the property extends to around 8.42 acres and offers a varied mix of gardens, pasture and more natural areas. Around the house there are patio and garden spaces, a greenhouse and raised beds which now need a little attention but clearly show the potential for productive growing. There is also a sheltered woodland area, a small pond behind the main house, and a further wooded section above the annexe barn, all of which add variety and interest to the land.

Beyond the gardens, a gate at the top of the drive opens into the pasture where there is a useful wooden barn, with the rear wall still needing completion, providing helpful space for livestock or general agricultural use. Behind this sits a small orchard area, with the field extending beyond. At the top of the field is a row of solar panels and, perhaps best of all, the most striking outlook across the valley and mountains beyond. It is very much the sort of view that rewards a walk up the land.

Although this home sits well away from Cardigan Bay and West Wales, the same appeal of open landscapes, independent living and adaptable space is very much present here too, just in a different part of Wales. For anyone searching for a character property with acreage, useful outbuildings and scope for multi-generational living, guest accommodation or possible holiday let income, this is a very strong option.

Viewing is the best way to appreciate the setting, the flexibility of the barns and the scale of the views on offer.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AREA:

Babel is a small, rural hamlet near the Bannau Brycheiniog National Park, known for its open countryside, forestry and excellent access to outdoor pursuits. Despite its peaceful setting, it remains well connected, with Llandovery just a short drive away (around 10 minutes), offering a good range of everyday amenities, independent shops and a railway station on the Heart of Wales line. The A40 is easily accessible from the area, providing a direct route east towards Brecon and west towards Llandeilo and Carmarthen. From Carmarthen, the A48 links onto the M4, giving onward connections to Swansea, Cardiff and beyond, making the location feel rural without being isolated.
