The property is arranged over two floors and reveals a thoughtfully balanced interior, rich in original detail.

A particular highlight is the original Georgian staircase, which rises gracefully through the house and provides a striking architectural focal point. The principal reception space is an inviting living room, complete with a charming wood-burning stove, creating a warm and characterful environment ideal for both everyday living and more formal entertaining.

In addition, a separate study provides a valuable and versatile space, perfectly suited to home working. The kitchen is well-appointed and sensibly arranged, complementing the traditional layout of the house while offering practical functionality. The upper floors provide well-proportioned bedrooms, each benefitting from natural light and a continued sense of period charm, with the main bedroom also featuring a wood-burning stove, adding to the property's unique appeal and comfort.

Throughout, the property retains a number of original features, including traditional joinery and internal shutters, contributing to its warm and authentic atmosphere.

Hocker Hill Street is widely regarded as one of Chepstow's most characterful and desirable addresses, known for its cobbled surface and historic streetscape. The property is ideally positioned for immediate access to the town's amenities, including independent retailers, cafés, and restaurants.
