Victorian from the kerb. Unmistakably modern behind the door.

With its handsome double bay-fronted façade, beautiful proportions and unmistakable period presence, this five-bedroom Brookside home delivers everything you want from a Victorian property, before opening up at the rear into an incredible contemporary living space designed entirely around modern life.

Extending to approximately 2,465 sq ft across three storeys, the house has been sympathetically evolved rather than simply modernised. Original character and more formal living spaces remain an important part of the home, while a substantial open-plan extension has completely transformed the way the ground floor is lived in.

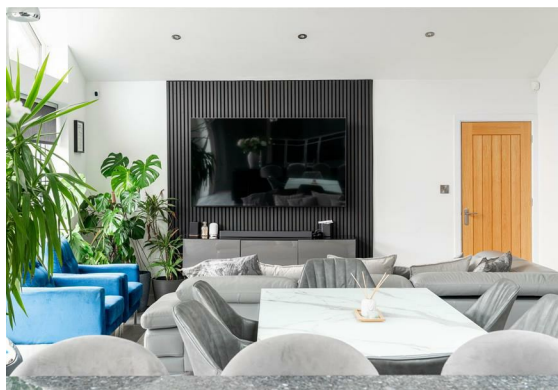

A Victorian home with all the kerb appeal, character and proportions you'd hope for, completely reimagined for the way we live today.
