THE LOCATION

The apartment is situated on the eastern side of the new village of Fairfield, built in an attractive Victorian style, echoing the listed former hospital in the grounds of which the village has been constructed. Virtually all the trees from the original park have been retained and the village benefits from many open green areas, many of them with play and leisure equipment. Fairfield is served by a convenience store, village hall, primary school and other local amenities. The original hospital, now converted into apartments, also house a health club.

Fairfield is conveniently located on the Bedfordshire/Hertfordshire border just north of Letchworth Garden City and south of Stotfold, both of which offer a wide range of amenities, the former having a mainline railway station with regular services to London. The village is just to the south of the A507, running east to west, linking the A1(M) and the M1.
