This fantastic barn conversion was a personal project for the current owners who bought it as a threshing barn, affectionately called 'a shed' in 2018. It has been a true labour of love and really was 'hand built' from roof trusses to the outside garden wall, completing the renovation in 2020 to create this beautiful home. The attention to detail with careful consideration to embrace the character but afford modern luxuries, has been a triumph. The layout is perfect, with connected living, dining, and kitchen space, inviting people together, but with a cosiness for when it's just the two of you at home. This cheery, welcoming home is decorated with a neutral palette to showcase the beautiful beams and leaves a blank canvas for new owners to move straight in and create their own style.

Step Inside

Stepping in past the tasteful bay trees, the layout of this home is beautifully straight forward with a main entrance hall from which all the ground floor rooms are found, and with social spaces thoughtfully positioned away from sleeping areas. The bright vaulted kitchen/dining area is pure revelation when stepping into it from the hallway - with floor to ceiling glazing and two sets of double doors to the garden, the space is absolutely swathed in natural light. The navy blue cabinetry adds a pop of colour and personality and houses appliances in an L shaped design in one corner - the large island is a natural hub for relaxed entertaining, and with seating and further storage makes this a practical feature. The dining table sits just next to the island making a perfect setting for formal suppers or for hosting a crowd with plenty of room for guests to linger over conversation with the cook. This kitchen/dining room is open planned with the living room, the flooring seamlessly bringing the spaces together, bathed in sunshine from floor to ceiling glazing again with double doors to connect inside and outside, and has a magnificent log burner with built in log store for snuggling up in the cooler months. Back into the hallway, with its practical LVT flooring, you find the utility room and next to it the perfect home office - away from social areas and from the bedrooms beyond. Next you find the cloakroom and a guest room with elegant en-suite. The principal bedroom, once the calving unit of the original barn, is breathtaking with a vaulted ceiling promoting an atmosphere of space and calm; ancient beams give way to a stylish shower room with enormous walk-in shower, displaying a successful marriage of the ancient and contemporary.

KEY FEATURES

Luxury And Practicality

Designed to high specifications, with Finnish triple glazing, and underfloor heating this stunning home is economic to run. The barn has a friendly welcoming atmosphere throughout – the kitchen with standout navy cabinetry adds texture and mood and is a testament to the blend of ancient and modern in this tasteful transformation. The home feels layered with ancient weathered original beams, to contemporary expanses of glazing, and is still a home that will evolve with you, with the rooms being versatile in their use. Whether just two for supper in the kitchen or 12 for an all in family lunch, the space works – the open plan design always includes the chef in the conversation... and the wine! For a large family, the four or possibly five bedrooms and three bathrooms afford everybody space and privacy, or for those fancying a bit of ancillary income, the first-floor bedrooms and bathroom could work well as Airbnb accommodation. With ground floor principal and guest bedrooms both with ensuite, the home is futureproofed too – whether moving in family requiring accessible facilities or staying forever yourself. The summer house whilst gorgeous as it is, could also work as a home office or gym.

Explore Upstairs

Stairs from the entrance hall leads to the landing where you find two further generous bedrooms and an expansive family bathroom. This floor feels like a guest suite with spacious bedrooms allowing room for double beds as well as beds or cots for little people and is the ultimate quiet space for bedtime stories. The expansive family bathroom with restful leafy wallpaper, offers a fabulous freestanding bathtub and large shower – plenty of space for a long soak in peace with a glass of wine. Equally this floor would work as rooms for older children, giving them a little independence with space of their own, or as work from home spaces.

Step Outside

The barn is found at the end of a private tree lined driveway, with double cart lodge with storage above and parking. The south facing, fully enclosed gardens have borders planted with a variety of colourful evergreens and as they mature will grant even more privacy. A huge terrace running the total width of the barn, with space for dining, lounging and fun reinforces this inside outside design with the terrace connected by three sets of double doors to both kitchen/dining and living zones. The gorgeous summer house is a real mood booster, with folding bar and a wall of bifold doors; the owners often have supper here in summer, relishing the gorgeous sun sets. It is linked to a thoughtful covered area for hot tub, or dining table, with protection from the weather to guarantee enjoyment of an English summer. It is like taking a holiday at home, relaxing in the hot tub with a glass of fizz, watching the children play games on lawns.
