A beautifully extended four-bedroom bungalow offering generous and highly adaptable single-level living, set within a quiet cul-de-sac in a much-admired village location with open views across the Gordano Valley.

The property has been thoughtfully arranged to suit modern living, with a layout that works equally well for downsizers seeking space without stairs, professional couples working from home, or families needing flexible accommodation.

The front entrance opens into a practical boot room, ideal for coats, shoes and everyday storage, helping keep the main living spaces uncluttered. Beyond this, the accommodation flows into a spacious dining room which connects seamlessly to the main sitting room, featuring a fireplace and doors opening onto a south-facing deck — perfect for enjoying the outlook and sunshine.

The heart of the home is the open-plan kitchen and dining area, offering excellent workspace, built-in appliances and ample room for a range cooker. A discreet utility cupboard houses noisier appliances out of sight, while an additional rear room is currently configured as a home office for two remote workers. This versatile space benefits from double doors opening onto the garden and could equally serve as a second sitting room, snug or family room if preferred.

The bedroom accommodation is arranged off an inner hallway and comprises four genuine double bedrooms, including a large principal suite with a walk-in wardrobe and an en-suite shower room, alongside a well-appointed family bathroom.

Outside, the rear garden is fully enclosed, private and designed for low-maintenance enjoyment, making it ideal for entertaining or quiet relaxation. From both the living areas and the front deck, the property enjoys attractive open views across the valley, creating a peaceful and light-filled setting throughout the day.

The property is accessed via steps to the front entrance and offers excellent potential for future adaptation if required.
