Welcome to Vicarage Farm

Vicarage Farm was built in 1888 by members of a well-known Stewkley family, The Hedges. This is confirmed by initials chiselled C J H 1888 in a brick just above the roof of the front conservatory. The farmhouse is in the same style as many Victorian farmhouses across north Bucks and built, largely, with the famous Stewkley red brick. The south façade with, Stewkley red brick walls, a roof with matching pegged clay tiles, rebuilt in 2000, symmetrically placed sash windows with views as far as the Chilterns together with the stables renovated and converted to a residential annex in 2000, makes an imposing main entrance to the buildings.

The front of Vicarage Farm presents an attractive and characterful traditional red-brick farmhouse façade, approached via a sweeping gravel driveway arranged around a central circular lawn. The elevation is defined by its warm, weathered brickwork, tall sash-style windows and pitched clay-tiled roofs, with several substantial brick chimney stacks adding to its period character.
