Why you'll like it

Set in a cul-de-sac in the Stockbridge area of Keighley, this stone-fronted two-bedroom mid-terrace has a glazed entrance porch, gardens to the front and rear, and a detached garage at the rear.

The porch opens into a front-facing lounge, where a stone fireplace and arched alcoves give the room character. To the rear, the fitted dining kitchen has a timber-panelled ceiling, tiled flooring and room for a table. A window above the sink overlooks the garden, and a separate door leads directly outside.

Upstairs, the principal bedroom has space for a double bed, wardrobes and a desk. The second bedroom is currently furnished as a single, and the bathroom has a bath, pedestal wash basin and WC.

The front garden is predominantly paved, with planted borders and a path to the porch. At the rear, a paved seating area sits alongside established planting, with a path running beside the garage.

Aireworth Grove is well placed for everyday shopping at nearby Alston Retail Park and in Keighley town centre. Keighley railway station offers direct services to Leeds, Bradford Forster Square and Skipton. For time outdoors, the Leeds & Liverpool Canal towpath offers walks through Stockbridge towards Riddlesden, where the National Trust's East Riddlesden Hall and gardens are also nearby.
