About The Property

Situated in the heart of Cardigan town, this semi-detached three-bedroom house presents a rare chance to own a property that combines convenience, space, and real potential. Positioned within walking distance of supermarkets and local amenities, yet still retaining a sense of privacy, the property offers a strong foundation for a buyer with an eye for updating and shaping a home to personal taste. With off-road parking for multiple vehicles, an attached garage, and a well-proportioned garden, this is a place that ticks the boxes for location and practicality while also holding scope for future improvement.

Approaching the property, the first impression is one of practicality. A tarmac driveway sweeps across the front, comfortably allowing space for over three cars, with direct access into the attached garage through an up-and-over door. From here, a sliding door leads into a compact porch, a handy area for coats, shoes, and everyday essentials. Beyond this, the main front door opens into a wide hallway where the staircase leads to the first floor, and where an under-stair cupboard provides useful storage. From here, doors lead to both the kitchen and the lounge/dining space.

The main reception is generously sized, running the length of the property. At the front, the lounge area offers a feature fireplace as a natural focal point, and there is ample room for seating and furnishings. To the rear, the dining space opens from the lounge, separated by a wide arch with a curtain that can be drawn across if preferred. With windows to both the front and back, the entire room feels bright and balanced, while its open plan nature lends itself well to flexible use. Whether left open as one continuous space or sectioned into two distinct areas, the layout works well for a variety of living arrangements.

Continued :

Accessible both from the dining room and the hallway, the kitchen is set at the back of the house. A window above the sink gives a clear view across the rear garden, and there is a practical layout of wall and base units along with an electric oven and hob. While perfectly functional as it stands, the space would benefit from updating, and the proportions provide plenty of scope to create a modern kitchen that suits contemporary living. Off the kitchen lies the utility area, a room that adds a great deal of convenience. With plumbing for a washing machine, space for additional appliances, and housing the gas boiler, it also links through to the garage, to the back garden, and to a separate ground-floor W.C. This additional toilet, complete with sink, is a useful feature for busy households. The garage itself provides further storage or potential workshop space, with direct access both from the utility and the driveway.

Upstairs, the property continues to impress with its proportions. The landing leads to three bedrooms, two of which are substantial doubles and the third a well-sized single. The double bedrooms both feature their own wash basins, offering added practicality. The family bathroom, also accessed from the landing, comprises a bath, toilet, and sink, again ready for updating but generous in size. A particularly interesting feature of the first floor is the spiral staircase that leads up to the attic room. This converted space, complete with its own sink, adds flexibility, whether used as an additional bedroom, office, or hobby room. Its presence highlights the adaptability of the property, with scope for further improvement subject to the usual consents.

Externally :

The rear garden adds another dimension to the home. Flat and enclosed, it consists mainly of a lawn with paved pathways along the edges and a selection of mature shrubs. Surrounded by a solid wall, it offers privacy as well as a secure space for outdoor use. With some thoughtful landscaping, it could become a highly enjoyable garden area, equally suited to entertaining or simply relaxing.

What stands out most about this property is the amount of potential it carries. While entirely liveable as it is, there is no question that updating would transform it into something truly impressive. The spacious layout, combined with its location in Cardigan town and the benefit of off-road parking, garage, and garden, make it a strong foundation for a home that could meet the demands of modern family life with ease. The attic room and additional sinks in the bedrooms are unusual features that add to the flexibility of the house, while the garden and driveway ensure that outdoor and practical needs are equally well met.

Cardigan itself is a bustling market town on the edge of Cardigan Bay in West Wales. Known for its historic castle, riverside setting, and access to the spectacular Ceredigion coastline, the town combines heritage with convenience. Independent shops, supermarkets, schools, and leisure facilities are all close at hand, while the coast and countryside beyond offer countless opportunities for exploration. Properties with this much scope rarely come up so close to the centre, and this one offers the chance to create something special in a location that continues to grow in appeal.

In summary, this three-bedroom detached house is a substantial property with parking, a garage, a generous reception space, and a garden, all set in the desirable location of Cardigan town. With a layout that already works well but could easily be updated, it offers an excellent opportunity for those seeking a property with space, practicality, and the promise of more.
