North Dalton and the Wolds

North Dalton is a small, picturesque, Yorkshire Wolds village in the East Riding of Yorkshire. It is a peaceful, country haven, centrally located for convenient access to the region's sought-after towns, cities and villages. It is located about 6 miles northwest of the market town Driffield and 9 miles east of Pocklington. The city of York is approximately 22 miles to the west ; historic Beverley is 11 miles south ; the city of Hull is 19 miles south and the seaside town of Bridlington on the East Yorkshire coast, is 19 miles east .

The village lies in a rural area characterised by rolling hills, farmland, and scenic countryside, typical of the beautiful, unspoilt Yorkshire Wolds.

North Dalton has a rich history, with its roots tracing back to medieval times. Its parish church, All Saints, is a notable feature of the village, dating back to the 12th century. The village is also known for its traditional buildings - much of the village is in a conservation area -and its peaceful environment, make it a quiet, appealing residential retreat. The village benefits from a country pub, the Star Inn, located next to a picturesque pond ; the Inn has a restaurant and bar. The village benefits from a village hall which is available to hire for parties, events and other uses; there's a well equipped kitchen, and full disabled access. It is used for art classes, yoga, dances, music and a variety of community events.

The local economy historically revolved around agriculture, though the village today primarily serves as a prestigious residential area with a community feel. The Wolds' region's tranquility and unspoiled countryside make it a haven for nature lovers and those who enjoy outdoor pursuits, including walking, cycling and horse riding.

The surrounding East Yorkshire Wolds are a range of gently rolling chalk hills in the East Riding of Yorkshire. They stretch from the Humber Estuary in the south to the coastal cliffs at Flamborough Head in the north. Known for their picturesque landscapes, the Wolds feature open fields, dry valleys, wooded areas, and charming villages, making them a popular destination for walking, cycling, and rural tourism.

The Wolds are steeped in history, with evidence of prehistoric settlements, ancient burial mounds, and medieval churches. The area inspired the famous artist David Hockney, who captured its beauty in his landscape paintings.

The Yorkshire Wolds Way, a 79-mile National Trail offers breathtaking views and historic towns along its route including the traditional market towns of Beverley and Driffield.
