An exceptional and highly versatile eco property conveniently located midway between Cardigan and Newport and ten minutes from beaches. Set within approximately three acres of beautifully curated gardens, the private and secluded grounds feature bluebell woods with stream, edible forest garden and mini vineyard, offering a homesteading lifestyle opportunity combined with proven income potential. Figs and apricots grow on the warm SE facing front wall of the barn while the forest garden produces almonds, grapes and a variety of edible berries. A coppice wood supplies firewood of chestnut and hazel. This recently-converted barn has been thoughtfully designed and converted to conservation standards with sustainability at its core.

Description

The traditional 18th century barn walls are 2 feet deep, adding an old-world feel to the place. The property features hemp and lime insulated walls, providing outstanding natural insulation and breathability, complemented by clay-painted walls that enhance air quality and create a warm, organic aesthetic. Double-glazed timber windows maintain character while supporting excellent thermal efficiency. Energy efficiency is further enhanced by a biomass boiler supplying underfloor heating, ensuring consistent, economical warmth throughout the home. The property also benefits from a 6kW solar photovoltaic array, significantly reducing electricity costs. Importantly, the self-contained annexe also enjoys its own solar hot water system reinforcing the property's strong environmental credentials and low running costs

Description continued

The main residence offers well-balanced and flexible accommodation ideally suited to family living, lifestyle buyers or continued holiday letting. Living spaces are light-filled and welcoming, with a natural flow between indoor and outdoor areas. The self-contained annexe provides independent accommodation, ideal for multi-generational living, guest accommodation, or continued holiday or tenancy letting.

The property has operated as a thriving and highly rated holiday accommodation, attracting excellent guest feedback and repeat visitors — a testament to both its charm and commercial viability.
