The Hoe, Plymouth

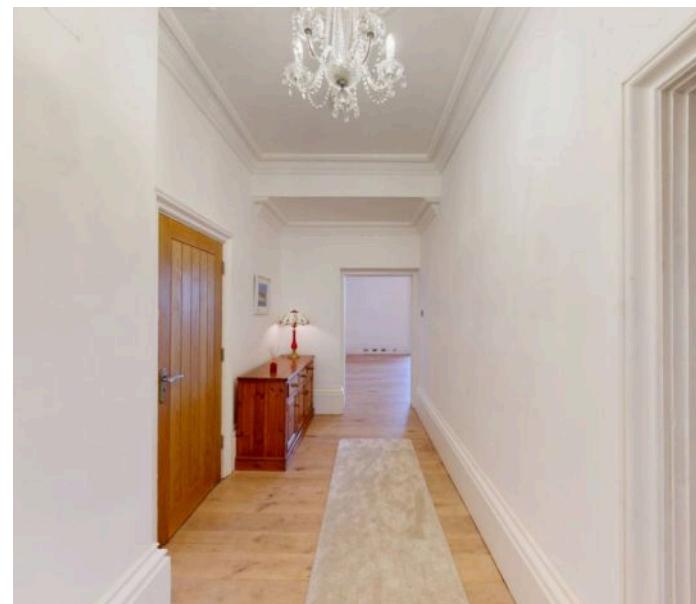

Step into a piece of Plymouth's rich heritage with this charming two bedroom garden flat, gracefully set within a Grade II* Listed building on the historic Hoe Promenade, offering some of the city's most spectacular views across Plymouth Hoe and out towards the sparkling waters of Plymouth Sound. Inside, the property welcomes you with an inviting blend of period character and modern comfort, all lovingly maintained and sympathetically updated to create a truly special home. The large living room is a real highlight, featuring a striking fireplace that draws the eye and beautiful cast iron radiators that nod to the building's history, making it the perfect space to relax or entertain while taking in the ever-changing coastal scenery.

Both bedrooms are generous doubles, offering plenty of space for restful nights and peaceful mornings, while the well-sized shower room combines practicality with style. The kitchen, recently fitted and thoughtfully designed, boasts feature ceiling lighting that adds a touch of contemporary flair to the classic setting, making meal prep a pleasure whether you're cooking for two or a few friends.

The property offers owners the benefit of a Residential Permit Parking scheme run by Plymouth City Council.

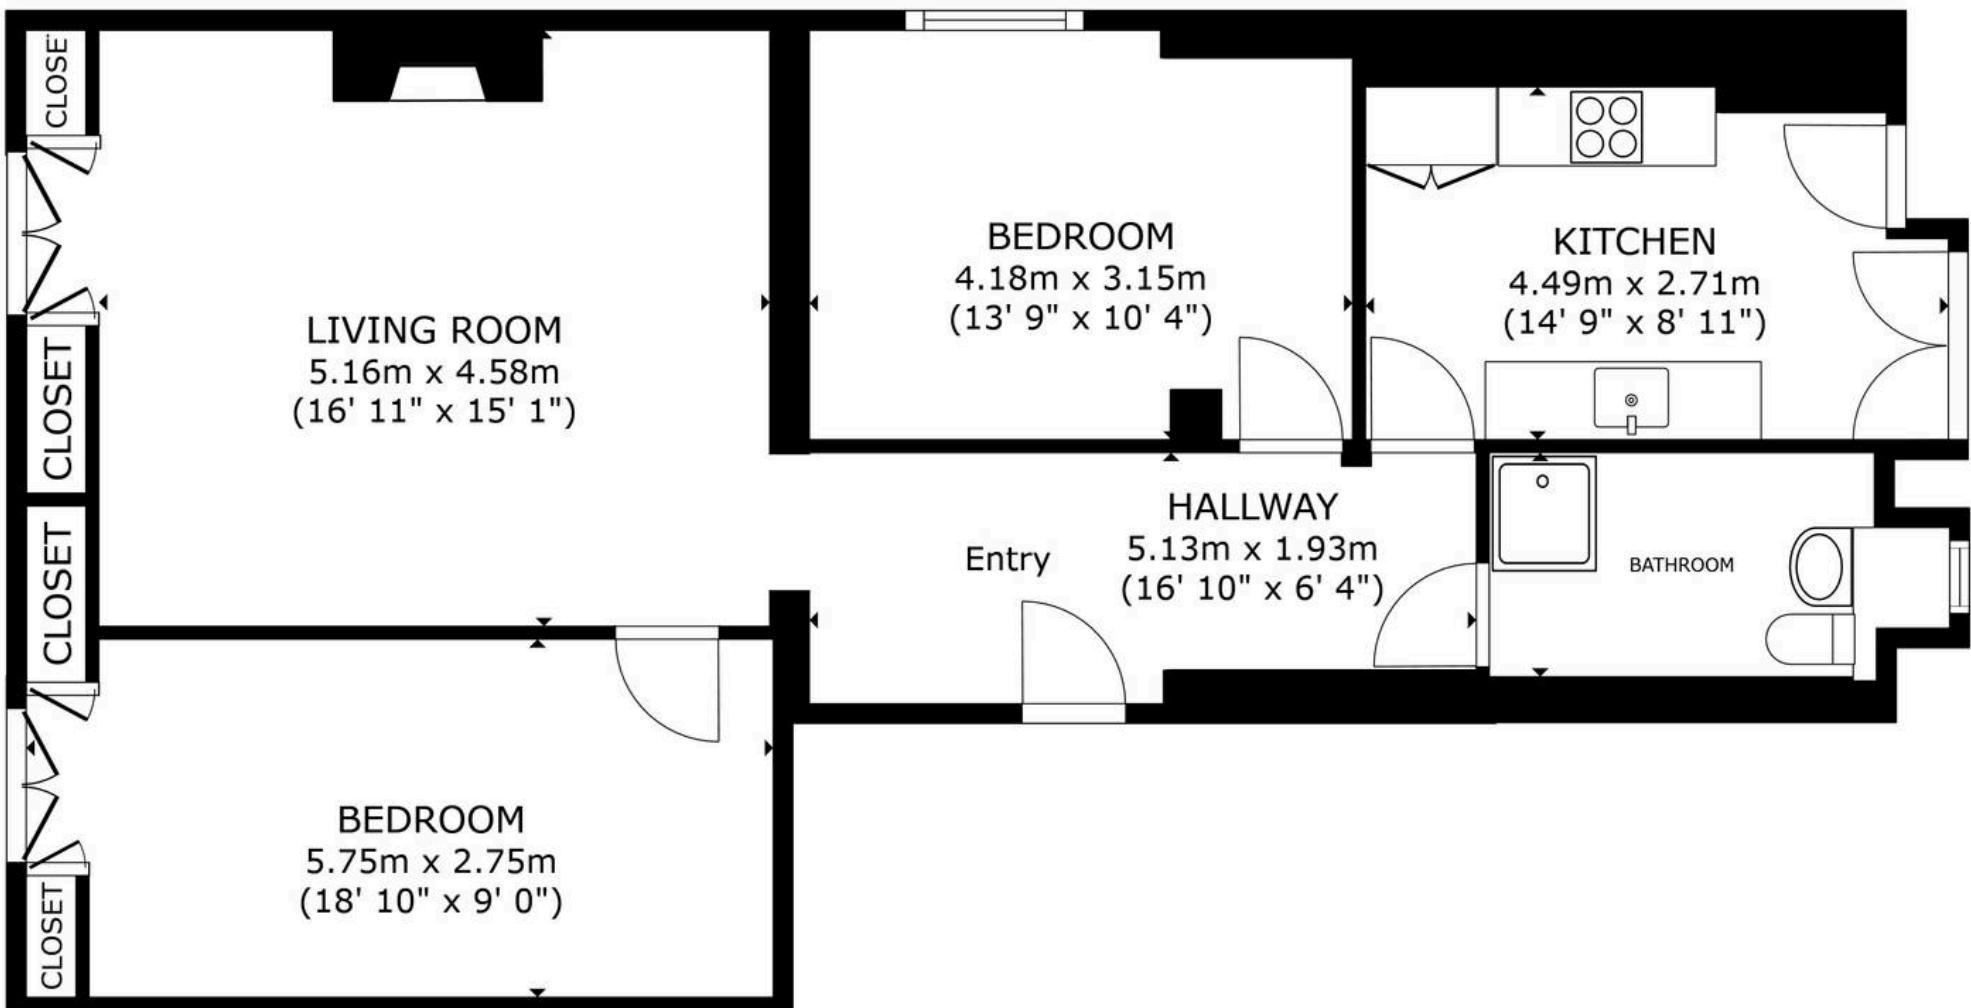

Throughout, the flat's lovely condition is evident, with every detail carefully considered to balance the historic charm of the building with the needs of modern living. The property's unique character is further enhanced by its connection to Plymouth's storied past, making it more than just a place to live - it's a piece of history you can call home. This is
