INTRODUCTION

Nestled on the scenic shores of Loch Creran, Creagan Inn is a renowned bar and restaurant offering breathtaking views, warm hospitality, and a rich history. Located in the heart of Appin, this unique property is an established favourite for locals and visitors alike, drawn by its exceptional setting, vibrant atmosphere, and delicious food. The area is a tourist mecca being surrounded by picturesque mountains as well as the coastal region along Loch Creran. The area forms part of the Lynn of Lorn National Scenic Area. The local economy is predominantly based around tourism as well as forestry and fishing. The area is popular with day-trippers as well as overseas visitors, all enjoying the local walking, cycling, sailing, windsurfing, water skiing and pony trekking. There are many tourist attractions nearby including Castle Stalker, The Highland Titles Nature Reserve and Tralee Beach. Day visitors tend to come from Oban to the south and Fort William to the north, although it is not unheard of from people from further afield such as Inverness and Glasgow to visit.

Creagan Inn represents more than just a business—it's a lifestyle in one of Scotland's most stunning landscapes. Whether you're an entrepreneur looking to invest in hospitality or seeking a change of pace in a remarkable location, this property has it all

Externally, the front of the property is very traditional with stone walls leading onto a modern terrace with panoramic views across the bay. Internally, the property stands out with its traditional features, combining rustic elements with modern design to create a warm homely atmosphere.

The current owners have invested in the outdoor terrace offering an impressive space to host barbecues, an oyster/champagne bar or enjoy live music and showing sports, as well as take in the breathtaking views.

From a business perspective, The Creagan Inn offers a great opportunity to run a successful already established business in an enviable location. The business already has a stellar reputation and a loyal customer base, attracting visitors from near and far throughout the year. The business has a great amount of development potential with a large owners flat and staff accommodation that could be developed into letting accommodation and land which could be utilised to provide lodges.
