Location...

Southminster is a semi-rural village in the Dengie Peninsula area, popular with commuters due to its train station with links to London. The village also benefits from scenic walks, a primary school, tennis and football club, swimming pool, various shops, restaurants and public houses, something for everyone and ideal for families. The local towns are Burnham-On-Crouch which is within 3 miles, Maldon and South Woodham Ferrers both within 12 miles. The village has many character properties, cottages and Victorian residence. Historically, the village was known for its annual horse market, and in the centre, St Leonards Church at the heart of the village dates back to the 15th century.
