Full details

Rathburn House sits on the east side of the popular coastal town of Buckie on the Moray coast. Moray is renowned as being one of the sunniest and driest counties in Scotland and has a wide range of excellent places to stay, eat and shop. The county is famed for its breathtaking scenery, long sandy beaches, wildlife and offers wonderful leisure and recreational opportunities. Buckie has a rich and diverse range of services, amenities, major supermarkets, a good selection of independent shops, sporting and recreational facilities. Buckie is close by to several small villages which are a haven for arts, cultural and social events. Elgin, Aberdeen and Inverness are all within easy commuting distance whilst train stations at Keith and Elgin provide direct links. Aberdeen and Inverness provide all of the facilities expected from a city, with an excellent selection of shopping, retail parks and associated services, rail links and airports.

Rathburn House is a detached six bedroom family home which enjoys an elevated spot providing fantastic 360 degree views across the harbour, Moray Firth, Caithness hills beyond and country views towards the Hill of Maud. This home sits on a generous plot of approximately 2 acres. The property dates back to the Victorian era and was previously the home of James Archibald, Provost of Buckie and Lord Lieutenant of Banffshire. On his death in 1946 the property was converted into a Hotel. It was renovated back to a family home and retains beautiful traditional features, including window panelling, deep skirtings, cornicing and wood panelled doors. Rathburn House has been finished to a high standard and is in walk-in condition.

The property is accessed via two gates from March Road, onto a circular tarmac driveway. The home entrance is via a tiled outdoor porch opening into the entrance vestibule hall which in turn accesses the hall. The hall accesses all the ground floor accommodation (with the exception of the utility room) and the carpeted staircase to the first floor. The first of the three public rooms on the ground floor is the living room which sits on the north west corner of the home and has two large bay windows, providing sea views. The room has curved walls and beautiful cornicing, with a wood burner also installed. On the south west corner is the sitting room which is another dual aspect room with bay windows bathing the room in natural light. This room is also full of
