The Property

A characterful two-bedroom cottage in the rural hamlet of Rejerrah, combining original features with a modern finish, attractive gardens, parking and a versatile garden cabin.

Foxglove is a well-presented period cottage in Rejerrah, surrounded by open countryside yet within easy reach of Newquay and the popular village of Cubert.

The property has been thoughtfully updated in recent years, including a modern kitchen and bathroom, while retaining much of its original character. The ground floor is well laid out, with a modern kitchen featuring shaker-style units, integrated appliances and good workspace. An archway leads through to a bright sunroom/utility area with space for laundry appliances and storage, as well as access to the garden.

The living room retains plenty of original character, with exposed beams, a wood-burning stove and French doors opening onto the garden. Off the living room is a separate dining room with exposed stonework, providing a good-sized space for everyday dining or entertaining.

Upstairs are two generously proportioned double bedrooms, both overlooking the rear gardens and enjoying a pleasant outlook.

Gardens

The front and rear gardens are both a real feature of the property, with established planting, mature borders and a selection of seating areas creating attractive and secluded spaces to relax and enjoy the surroundings.

The front garden sets the tone, with a gravel path leading through established planting and mature shrubs to the entrance.

The rear garden is thoughtfully arranged over two levels, with a private patio area and steps leading up to a lawned garden, with a number of useful outbuildings positioned at the far end. The principal outbuilding is a substantial timber garden cabin, currently used for storage but offering excellent potential as a home office, studio, gym or workshop. The cabin benefits from both power and lighting, making it a particularly versatile addition to the garden.
