With Llangattock Hillside rising behind and far-reaching views across the valley before it, this exceptional home enjoys a wonderful blend of formal south-facing lawns, grassy pathways and private woodland which together create a genuine sense of peace and connection with its natural surroundings. Yet despite its superb rural setting, The Neuadd also offers very convenient access. Llangattock Village, with its primary school, play park and pubs, lies within walking distance via pathways leading from the grounds, whilst the thriving market town of Crickhowell is just minutes away by car. The property enjoys the privacy and beauty of country living without the remoteness often associated with more isolated rural homes and forms part of an attractive historic setting with just one other high-quality residence. Its principal rooms, gardens and views face away from its two neighbours, preserving privacy without the isolation of a completely remote property, making The Neuadd a truly special retreat for those seeking an outstanding lifestyle in one of Wales's most desirable locations.

AVAILABLE BY SEPARATE NEGOTIATION is Trelawney Cottage, a detached two-bedroom cottage which sits to the rear of The Neuadd and offers the opportunity for valuable flexibility for multi-generational living. The cottage alternatively offers the potential of continuing more than 25 years of holiday letting.

DESCRIPTION | This unusual Grade II Listed period property comprises an L shaped house occupying two periods of history some of which can still be seen and enjoyed both internally and on its exterior. The rear of the property has Tudor origins and is believed to date from the late 1500's and has retained chamfered beams, an original wooden mullion window and in the kitchen, the original window openings with large chamfered wooden lintels and deep splayed reveals. From the kitchen, a wide stone and wooden tread staircase curves around an impressive inglenook fireplace rising to the first floor and continuing to the upper floor rooms with their exposed A framed vaulted ceilings which include original wooden pegs.

Constructed at the front of the house is a large Georgian extension from the 1700's; given the two eras that the house spans, there is a good flow and connectivity. There are several external architectural features including sash windows, chimney stacks and slate roof tiles. A centrally placed panelled door at the front of the house opens into an entrance hall with a staircase leading up to a landing linking the first floor above. The two traditional reception rooms flank the staircase and both lead to the rear of the property and into a modern but sympathetically styled kitchen. The inglenook fireplace has a large stone chamfered lintel above and chamfered monolithic jambs, whilst to the rear of the curved fireplace is a bread oven housed under an arched opening.

Offering over 3000 sqft of accommodation in the house, the owners have decorated and presented the property to blend a contemporary feel with its historical features. The modern enhancements make this home exceptionally desirable for those seeking a property that is ready to move into. For any large and busy family home, bathrooms are important and, in this property, there are modern en-suites to the two largest bedrooms – the ensuite in the principal bedroom being recently fitted – as well as a large family bathroom suite and a cloakroom/wc on the ground floor. The kitchen at the rear of the property is undoubtedly the heart of the home providing generous space for cooking, eating and entertaining, it has wonderful views through its French doors onto a south facing sun terrace and lawns. Energy efficiency is also key, and, in this Grade II Listed home, the efficiency rating is a "C", helped along by the photovoltaic solar panels which provide the electricity supply in daylight hours. For those who like to spend time outdoors, there is lots to see and do around the grounds and for the inclement weather or simply for those who like to work from home, the detached garden room and associated outbuildings enable further opportunities for a variety of uses.

SITUATION | Llangattock is a favoured residential village set amongst the stunning scenery of the Black Mountains and Brecon Beacons National Park alongside the banks of the River Usk with the popular market town of Crickhowell lying just across the river bridge. The Monmouthshire and Brecon Canal

THE NEUADD GROUNDS

The property is approached via a private shared driveway owned by the neighbouring property over which a right of access is enjoyed. The drive opens into a parking area with off road parking for approximately five to six medium sized vehicles. The house sits in grounds of just under 1.5 acres with the garden lying predominately to the south and east of the house and comprising a pleasing mixture of formal gardens, woodland and wildlife meadow with fruit trees. The pathway from the parking area to the principal entrance rounds the house before revealing one of The Neuadd's most captivating features: the spectacular views across the Vale of Usk towards the surrounding mountains. From here a gate opens into:

GARDENS | These beautiful gardens are sympathetically arranged to suit their natural environment with a stone sun terrace facing south and providing a bird's eye view over the surrounding landscape towards Llangattock hillside. The partly walled garden is predominately lawned with shaped borders surrounding and interspersed throughout the garden, hosting a variety of plants, a pond and a selection of established trees. In the garden is a large garden room with veranda which when the inclement weather strikes would still be a most splendid place from which to sit and observe the view across the landscape over the Vale of Usk to the peak of the Sugar Loaf beyond.

GARDEN ROOM

Being a truly rural setting that is connected to the wildlife corridor leading to Craig y Cilau National Reserve, there are a wide variety of occasional wildlife "visitors" to the garden, encompassing most examples of the fauna found in the national park. The garden room is an ideal relaxation space as the hub for outdoor gatherings or a family den. The insulated space is equipped with power and lighting with a door leading to a workshop hosting the control panel for the solar photovoltaic panels which supply an electric feed to the house (n.b. no feed in tariff).

Also in the garden is a brick-built tool shed with an adjoining store (formerly a WC now capped off), and two wooden sheds. There is space for vegetable beds and around the rear of the house, useful access to the parking area. Rising through the garden, grassed pathways leading to the top with further seating opportunities affording spectacular views across the valley. Sitting alongside the pathways are walnut and plum trees. The gardens are enclosed by fencing with a gate leading into sloping grassland and an attractive woodland beyond with further pathways linking the house and gardens through the woodland to a green lane which ultimately provides access to Hillside Road in Llangattock.
