The Property

Highfield house has the Wow factor. Built only three years ago this four bedroom, three bathroom, high spec property has been thoughtfully designed and provides an exceptional standard of build both inside and out. Once inside, one can fully appreciate the bespoke oak and glass staircase as well as the natural light which beams into the property. From the hallway is the cloakroom with a contemporary white suite and separate boot-room area for coats and jackets. The study which could equally be used as a snug or games room is off the hallway as is the wonderfully relaxing drawing room which benefits from an eye-catching inset stuv log burning stove and French doors to the garden which provide views for miles. Thoughtfully designed are large sliding oak doors which open from the drawing room to the truly spectacular open-plan kitchen/dining/sitting room, a wonderful space to entertain. The dining area has French doors to the garden but the kitchen at Highfield House has to take centre stage. A contemporary Austrian kitchen oozing quality workmanship with a bank of units containing integrated appliances, floor and wall units, sink with Quooker tap and Neolith worktop, induction hob with downdraft extractor which silently disappears into the worktop when not required. The sitting room area is single storey with an attractive vaulted ceiling. Two of the sitting room walls are glazed with bi-fold doors to the garden and which have useful electric blinds. From the kitchen is the utility which includes an airing cupboard that houses the water softener as well as provides side access to the garden. On the first floor are four double bedrooms, the main bedroom providing a particularly luxurious space to relax in with a dressing room, ensuite with double basin unit, freestanding bath and shower and a Juliet balcony with floor-to-ceiling glazing framing the countryside views. Bedroom two also has the benefit of an ensuite. The family bathroom has a contemporary suite with freestanding shower and all rooms have built-in wardrobes.
