

137 Horncastle Road

Set behind a generous driveway and attractive front garden, the property offers a deceptively spacious and highly versatile layout that can easily adapt to a variety of lifestyles. Whether you're looking for up to three bedrooms with separate lounge and dining spaces, or maybe only need one-bedroom bungalow with generous living accommodation including a lounge, dining room, study and garden room, the flexible design allows you to tailor the home to your individual needs. Nine solar panels add to the energy efficiency of the property and generate electricity and heat the hot water, with excess being fed back to the grid.

The property also features a stylish modern kitchen with appliances and a private, low-maintenance rear garden, currently bursting with colourful wild poppies and wildflowers that create a charming cottage-garden feel amongst the paved seating areas.

Situated along Horncastle Road in Boston, this established detached bungalow enjoys a wonderful position just a pleasant stroll from the town centre, whilst benefiting from attractive views over the picturesque Maud Foster Waterway to the front. The Maud Foster was constructed primarily to drain the surrounding fenland and reduce flood risk to Boston. Despite having the appearance of a natural river, it forms part of the Witham Drainage network and water levels are actively controlled by the Environment Agency by sluice gates located at the Marina.
