This substantial 1930s detached residence offers generous and versatile accommodation, set within a wonderful plot in the highly regarded Upper Clevedon area. Positioned along Edward Road, this charming home presents a rare opportunity, being sold for the first time in over 30 years, and offers exciting scope for those looking to create a truly special family home.

Approached via a pretty front garden with lawn, driveway and mature planting, the property immediately sets a welcoming tone. The original storm porch and entrance door lead into a central hallway, rich in character and featuring the original telephone room, while providing access to all principal ground floor rooms. The bay-fronted sitting room enjoys a feature open fireplace, creating a cosy focal point, while to the rear the kitchen and formal dining room overlook the extensive gardens beyond. Additional ground floor accommodation includes a cloakroom, utility room and integral garage.

To the first floor, a lovely galleried landing leads to four well-proportioned double bedrooms, two bathrooms and a separate study, offering excellent flexibility for family living or working from home. The family bathroom benefits from the added comfort of underfloor heating.

Externally, the rear gardens are a standout feature. A lawn stretches away from the house with a central pathway leading through to a former vegetable garden, now a nature-rich space ideal for gardening enthusiasts, families or outdoor entertaining.

Overall, this is a spacious and characterful home with significant potential for extension, whether to the rear or into the loft space, subject to the necessary planning consents. The loft itself is notably large, offering excellent potential for conversion to further enhance the accommodation.

“A rare opportunity to reimagine a much-loved family home in one of Clevedon’s most desirable locations.”
