With high ceilings, large sash windows, and generous proportions, this two-bedroom apartment close to Seven Dials will not disappoint. Beautifully presented throughout, this property is ready to move into and make home.

The entrance to the flat opens to a hallway. The two bedrooms are both located at the rear of the flat, with views over neighbouring gardens. The main bedroom is over 4 metres long, which combined with the high ceilings, gives a very light and spacious feel. The second bedroom is also a double, with a high sash window, and like the rest of the flat, is freshly painted and well-presented. The bathroom has a white suite, with a shower over the bath and again a good size window which lets plenty of light in.

At the front of the flat is a superb reception room with windows onto Alfred road, where there are large trees, so the outlook is green and peaceful, as this is a quiet residential street. The kitchen is open to the living space which is sociable for entertaining, and there is the added benefit of a breakfast bar which works well to separate the two spaces. The kitchen is modern, with a gas hob, integrated oven and appliances. The apartment also benefits from a large storage cupboard, accessed from the half landing.

Seven Dials is an enduringly popular part of the city and it's easy to see why. Attractive tree-lined roads of period properties and a sense of a vibrant and friendly community; coffee shops at the Dials with outside seating, plenty of local independent shops and green spaces close by including Dyke Road Park or St Ann's Well Gardens make this a very attractive place to live. You can head to the beach or to town on foot and Brighton station is within easy reach for commuters.
