Palm Cott is a beautifully presented two-bedroom cottage, discreetly tucked away along a private lane. Offering a wonderful balance of seclusion and convenience, the property provides a peaceful escape while remaining only a short walk from the bustling town centre and picturesque harbour. Nestled beside Tinkers Wood in an elevated position, it benefits from excellent natural light and an open, leafy aspect rarely found in such a central location.

The cottage is now presented in immaculate, move-in-ready condition. The main living area is both welcoming and versatile, with space for comfortable lounge seating as well as dining furniture, while those who prefer may opt for a smaller breakfast table in the kitchen. Character and charm flow throughout, thanks to thoughtful details such as a feature wood-burning stove, pretty built-in alcove storage, and exposed limestone walls. The bespoke wooden kitchen cabinetry, complete with a Belfast sink, adds to the cottage's timeless appeal.

Upstairs, the spacious front bedroom features two built-in cupboards and provides a relaxing retreat, while the second bedroom at the rear is ideal as a guest room, study, or child's bedroom. A stylish modern shower room sits alongside a highly practical utility room, which houses the combi boiler and offers valuable extra storage. From here, doors lead directly out into the delightful rear garden.

The garden itself is a real highlight: cleverly terraced over two levels, it provides a choice of spaces to enjoy. The lower level offers a lovely timber deck, perfect for outdoor dining or entertaining, while steps rise to a sunny patio area that captures open views and includes gated access onto Parkham behind. Current owner has made access from Wren Hill where there is ample parking, straight into the decked garden with access into the back of the house. There is also street parking available to the front of the lane.

Palm Cott has been successfully operated as a holiday let, further underlining its appeal. It is available fully furnished, with the majority of contents available by separate negotiation, and comes to the market with no onward chain — ready for its next chapter as either a permanent home, a second home, or a proven investment property.
