About The Property

Looking for a beautifully presented four-bedroom home with countryside views, generous living space and plenty of parking close to Cardigan? This detached dormer bungalow combines a striking garden sunroom, modern kitchen, three reception areas, ground-floor bedroom, principal bedroom with en-suite, integral garage and an enclosed rear garden overlooking the surrounding West Wales countryside.

Set on the outskirts of Cardigan, along a small private road just off Caemorgan Road, this beautifully presented detached dormer bungalow offers a particularly versatile amount of space both inside and out. With four double bedrooms, three reception areas, an integral garage, excellent storage and parking for several vehicles, it is a home that works equally well for family life, retirement or anyone looking for additional space without being far from town.

One of the property's real strengths is its position. The rear faces across open countryside, creating a lovely backdrop to the garden and several of the principal rooms, while the sunsets from this side of the house can be quite spectacular. Despite the rural feel to the outlook, Cardigan town and its shops, schools, supermarkets, cafés and other everyday amenities are within easy reach, with the coastline and beaches of Cardigan Bay also accessible from this convenient part of West Wales.

At the front, a substantial tarmac driveway provides off-road parking for around five vehicles, with an additional hardstanding area particularly useful for a touring caravan, campervan or motorhome. The integral garage provides further parking or storage, and gated access to both sides of the house leads through to the enclosed rear garden.

Internally, the house has been tastefully decorated and clearly well cared for. The entrance opens into a broad hallway with a tiled floor and stairs rising to the first floor, setting the tone for the generous proportions found throughout.

The kitchen is a particularly attractive room, fitted with a range of soft duck egg blue units complemented by quartz worktops and a built-in drainer. There is space for an American-style fridge freezer together with a range cooker, a built-in dishwasher, while the brick surround around the cooker adds some warmth and character to the contemporary finish. The Rangemaster currently shown is available by separate negotiation and has a gas hob with electric ovens. A peninsula provides additional preparation space as well as a useful breakfast bar for informal seating.

Windows above the worktops look directly towards the countryside, while the kitchen also connects with the sunroom, making this whole part of the house particularly enjoyable.

The sunroom is arguably the standout feature. Its high pitched ceiling and extensive glazing create an impressive room with windows rising into the gable and French doors opening directly onto the rear patio and garden. Rather than feeling like a conventional conservatory, this is very much part of the main accommodation and provides a comfortable everyday living space with the garden and countryside forming the backdrop.

There is also a well-proportioned main living room, centred around a brick fireplace with a gas fire. Sliding glazed doors connect this room with the sunroom, allowing the two spaces to work together while still retaining the option of separate rooms. Double doors at the opposite end open into the dining room, creating another good connection between the principal living areas.

The dining room itself has ample room for a family dining table and overlooks the front, while the additional ground-floor room offers valuable flexibility. Currently shown on the floorplan as an office/bedroom four, its proportions allow it to work comfortably as a double bedroom, home office, hobby room or additional sitting room. Having a genuine double bedroom on the ground floor considerably broadens the appeal and future flexibility of the house.

A separate utility room provides space for laundry appliances and houses the oil-fired central heating boiler, keeping the practical side of the house away from the main kitchen. A ground-floor WC completes this level.

Upstairs, the amount of space continues to impress. There are three further double bedrooms, including a particularly generous principal bedroom with fitted wardrobes and its own en-suite shower room.

The remaining bedrooms are also well proportioned, and storage has certainly not been overlooked. Two of the upstairs bedrooms benefit from generous built-in wardrobes, while extensive under-eaves storage provides an unusually useful amount of additional space for belongings that otherwise tend to find their way into garages and spare bedrooms.

The family bathroom serves the remaining bedrooms and is fitted with both a bath and separate shower enclosure, alongside a WC and wash basin. A roof window brings natural light into the room.

Externally:

Outside, the rear garden feels private from the house and makes the most of its open outlook. A paved patio runs across the rear, providing space for outdoor seating immediately outside the sunroom and an excellent position from which to enjoy the afternoon and evening light.

The main garden is predominantly grassed with established shrubs, hedging and planted borders around its edges, together with mature trees and a garden shed. Fruit trees add further interest, and the open aspect beyond the rear boundary gives the garden a sense of connection with the surrounding countryside rather than neighbouring development.

The glazed gable of the sunroom is just as effective externally as it is inside, giving the rear of the property an attractive architectural focal point while ensuring the garden and outlook remain a constant part of the living space.

For anyone needing parking for several cars, a motorhome or caravan, workshop or storage space in the integral garage, room to work from home and accommodation that can adapt over time, there is a great deal here that is genuinely useful rather than simply additional floor area.

Its location also strikes a good balance. Cardigan provides the practical amenities of a busy market town, while nearby coastal villages, beaches, countryside walks and the wider Cardigan Bay coastline are all part of everyday life in this corner of West Wales.

With its four double bedrooms, flexible ground-floor accommodation, excellent storage, substantial parking and that glass-fronted sunroom looking across the garden and countryside, this is a home with considerably more to offer than first appearances might suggest.

Viewing is recommended to appreciate the space, outlook and flexibility of the accommodation, particularly the sunroom and rear garden setting.
