Grade II listed country home set in a 1.2 acre plot situated just 5 miles from the sought after town of Ashbourne and on the fringes of the Peak National Park. The property is a blend of classic period architecture and modern restoration.

This Georgian home believed to date back to 1725 is a classic example of Georgian architecture.

Approached via a gated entrance and framed by shaped formal hedging, the property enjoys a high degree of privacy. The symmetrical façade is simply breath taking, centred around a classic stone porch entrance with elegant sash windows to either side and crowned with a striking half moon arched window on the top floor. An unmistakable hallmark of Georgian style.

Calton Moor House dates back to the 18th century. Originally built in 1725 as a coaching inn on the Birmingham–Manchester toll road, now the alluring building is one of the oldest surviving houses in the area that is still occupied. The home has served as a farm house, family home and business.

There are many character features including period fireplaces, exposed beams and a sizeable cellar with charming original features such as original salting stone, oven and beer keg seats, this space is the perfect place for wine storage and other potentials.

Externally, a driveway providing ample parking and turning for numerous vehicles as well as access to the garage. The sizeable landscaped garden boasts an array of mature trees and can be accessed from two separate sides. Completing the external space is a rear courtyard.

Every detail has been carefully considered in the restoration, ensuring a seamless blend of historical charm and everyday functionality.
