Believed to date back to the 18th century, this charming two-bedroom detached cottage occupies a delightful spot in the highly-sought after village of North Leigh.

Deceptively spacious, the property is steeped in character whilst having relevance to contemporary living owing to its versatile and well-proportioned living accommodation. Rich in period charm with exposed stone elevations and original timbers, the ground floor offers a sociable flow. Entry is via the central hallway which leads to the bright and well equipped kitchen. The cottage offers two reception rooms; the first being a large, extended reception/dining room with fireplace. The second is a cosy, dual aspect sitting room which occupies the far right of the plan. The family bathroom, utility room and first of the two double bedrooms with separate ensuite shower room can also be found on this level. The first floor is home to the second double bedroom with dressing room.

Externally the property benefits from a mature and fully enclosed rear garden and garage. Offered with no onward chain.
