ACCOMMODATION

This quintessential and charming, character Grade II listed thatched cottage built in 1640 is situated in the heart of Winterborne Kingston. The cottage is nestled in a particularly peaceful location and has been sympathetically maintained exuding period charm with modern touches, all impeccably finished. In typical rural fashion, the more commonly used entrance is through a timber stable door, into the utility/boot room. This area is well equipped with shaker style units, providing plentiful storage, in addition to a Belfast sink, and an integrated washing machine/tumble dryer. The shower room is accessed from here, comprising a large contemporary shower cubicle, hand wash basin, w.c. and heated towel rail plus plenty of storage. The thoughtfully designed kitchen/breakfast room is a charming and practical space, featuring a 5-ring gas hob, electric oven, integrated dishwasher, and fridge, as well as high-quality quartz countertops, ample floor and wall-mounted units, and a quartz-topped breakfast bar. The original cottage entrance, and what could be considered the "front door" enters into the cosy sitting room. This stunning space features a most attractive inglenook fireplace with a wood burner and a front aspect view. The dining room is a well-proportioned space that could be equally adept as a snug, office, or ground floor bedroom should it be desired. The master bedroom is a double with pleasant views across the village and includes built-in wardrobes. The second bedroom is a further double with fitted wardrobes and overlooks the garden. Completing the first floor, the cloakroom comprises of a w.c. and hand wash basin.
