Property Introduction

Situated at the end of a quiet cul-de-sac, this well presented detached bungalow occupies a generous corner plot position.

Approached via a brick driveway accessing an integral garage, the bungalow is believed to have been constructed in 1993 and offers spacious accommodation.

Benefiting from a comprehensive gas fired central heating system along with uPVC double glazed windows and doors the accommodation enjoys a pleasant aspect from the front with distant views towards the north coast and countryside. One of the main features the bungalow offers is a delightful established garden which is of a good size with a raised lawn and a variety of mature shrubs and trees. An additional area of garden is also accessed from the rear and would be ideal for those looking to accommodate a vegetable garden or suitable for a children's play area.

Location

Redruth is a historic former mining town steeped in rich industrial history and now offers a variety of retail outlets along with a mainline railway station to London Paddington. Just a few moments away is the main A30 Trunk road making travelling to other areas of the county that much easier and convenient. The rugged north coast with its majestic cliff top walks overlook many popular Cornish surfing beaches such as Portreath, Perranporth and Porthtowan.

The cathedral city of Truro lays approximately ten miles distant being the main centre in Cornwall for business and commerce and is home to the Hall For Cornwall situated on the Piazza. Within the city there can be found a variety of restaurants, cafes as well as its three spired gothic Cathedral, cobbled streets and Georgian architecture.
