 FINE & COUNTRY

Welcome to Carus Lodge, Slyne, Halton, Lancaster, LA2 6BL

A picturesque Grade II Listed William IV country villa on the outskirts of the village of Halton, near to the historic Georgian city of Lancaster offering excellent access to road and rail links and the great outdoors, Carus Lodge is the original and integral portion of this impressive Grade II listed building. Built in the early 1830s in Tudor Gothic style it comprises impressive reception rooms, a large and sociable living kitchen suited to both family living and entertaining alike, three/four bedrooms, two bathrooms, ancillary rooms and a range of cellars with wine store.

The house sits in established gardens of around 0.41 acre with wrap around seating terraces, a lawn overlooked by a magnificent beech tree, thoughtfully planted borders, double garage, generous parking and a dog kennel with run. There is also a paddock of c.1.02 acre with a small orchard, greenhouse and pond.

This handsome property is approached via an imposing shared driveway from its former gate house. A wealth of exterior features includes a three-arched loggia with an arched front door, stone mullioned windows, octagonal caps to chimney flues, and pinnacles.

The equally impressive interior is incredibly atmospheric and similarly offers original details such as period marble and slate fireplaces throughout, particularly large and ornate on the ground floor, the original staircase, panel doors, deep skirting boards, panelled bay windows with shutters, and ornate ceiling mouldings.

Carus Lodge offers the opportunity to enjoy a slice of grand English country house living on a manageable scale for modern day life. In all, c. 1.43 acres.

Carus Lodge has been a much lived-in family home for more than twenty years. With historic and aesthetic associations, it's provided a versatile context for family feasts and entertaining, offering ample space for relaxing and cheerful open fires. The grounds have been the happy scene of summer barbecues and autumn bonfires. All in all, we've very much loved living here!

Location

Situated amongst the rolling Lune Valley countryside and with first floor views of the Bowland hills, Carus Lodge enjoys a secluded setting, hidden by a line of mature trees from the road and set well back for privacy.

Just over a mile away, the village of Halton provides essential local facilities including a shop, pub, church, primary school and community center with children's play park. Surrounded by abundant open countryside, within the wider area are the National Parks of the Lake District and Yorkshire Dales and the protected National Landscapes of the Forest of Bowland and coastal Arnsdale & Silverdale. Within the local area is an extensive range of activities for those who enjoy an active outdoor lifestyle with cycling, running, horse riding, fishing, sailing and rowing, climbing and caving as well as the usual array of sports clubs all readily accessible.

Of further appeal is that the property is positioned within easy reach of a wider range of services and amenities within the historic city of Lancaster.

When venturing further afield by road there is excellent access to the M6 at J34 and if travelling by train, Lancaster has a station on the main West Coast rail line offering frequent services to London Euston, Glasgow, Edinburgh and Manchester airport. All in all, this a perfect country retreat without the inconvenience of living remotely.

Setting the scene

To reflect the architectural significance of the authentic period features, Historic England has awarded Carus Lodge Grade II Listed status. Their online schedule provides the following detail:

“Picturesque villa, late 1830s. Sandstone ashlar with slate roof. Irregular plan. 2 storeys. Main front faces south-east and is of 5 bays. Central bay gabled with mullioned and transomed windows, the ground-floor windows being in a canted bay with pierced parapet. Set back at the right is a second gable having a sashed window with no glazing bars, a chamfered surround and hood mould on the 1st floor and an arcade with 3 4-centred arches in front of the ground floor, forming an entrance porch. The left-hand side of the facade has a bay on the ground floor with 3 sashed windows with no glazing bars, and a pierced parapet. On the 1st floor are 2 double chamfered mullioned windows with triangular heads. The eaves parapet rises to form gables over the windows. Gables have copings, kneelers, and finials at the apex. Chimneys have octagonal caps to flues. Adjoining to the left are former stables, now part of the house, with 2 gables facing south-east. The right-hand gable is stepped, with a wide double-chamfered 4-centred archway on the ground floor, now glazed.”

Carus Lodge is the oldest and central portion of this unique country house. This striking William IV residence was the home of the Carus Wilson family and the centerpiece for the Carus Wilson estate. A stable block adjoined to the north and a Victorian wing was added, originally agricultural in purpose. In the early 2000s, the property was purchased and two residences were created from the William IV and Victorian parts, creating Carus Lodge and Orchard House respectively. A few years later the stables were converted into a third property, The Walled Garden.

This distinguished villa is a fine example of the William IV period, displaying many of the architectural characteristics that define this era of early nineteenth-century design. The property's handsome façade is enhanced by impressive stonework, an attractive wisteria clad loggia entrance and finely crafted stone-mullioned windows, all contributing to its commanding presence and enduring appeal.

Internally, the house retains a remarkable wealth of original period detail. Generously proportioned rooms are complemented by high ceilings, many adorned with intricate plaster cornices and decorative moulded ceiling work. Deep skirting boards and substantial architraves reflect the quality of craftsmanship associated with the period, while original panelled doors survive throughout, complete with much of their door furniture.

A series of beautiful marble and slate fireplaces form focal points to the principal rooms. Although not all in everyday use, these fireplaces have been previously operational and remain an important feature of the property's historic character. Although not original to the house, the cosy snug features a wood-burning stove set within an attractive antique fire surround sourced from Cheltenham, incorporating 17th and 19th century Dutch tiles that add individuality.

The original staircase is a striking centrepiece, rising imposingly with an impressive balustrade. Stone steps descend to a range of cellars with traditional flagged stone floors, these include a wine cellar, adding further distinction and practicality to this remarkable property.

Rarely does a property offer such a privileged opportunity to embrace the country house lifestyle. Rich in history and architectural integrity, this elegant villa represents a captivating slice of the grandeur of a bygone age. From its exceptional craftsmanship and surviving original features to its unique character and enduring presence, the house stands as a testament to a level of artistry and attention to detail seldom encountered today. It offers not merely a home, but the chance to become custodian of a truly distinctive period residence of lasting significance.

Step Outside

Turn into the impressive entrance passing the former characterful gate house, the approach is along a sweeping shared drive; continue on the private drive (the central one of three), marked 'Carus Lodge' on gate posts.

Offering privacy and amenity value, there are around 1.43 acres of mature gardens and grounds.

The house is set back behind a generous lawn (open plan to the adjoining house's lawn to elongate the view and minimize visual obstruction), bordered by a mature yew hedge and established shrubs and trees, including a magnificent Beech. To the side of the property, planted borders add seasonal colour and interest with a flagged path leading to the primary seating terrace, conveniently positioned next to a door leading into the kitchen making it ideal for outside dining.

A detached double garage (built in 2006/7) offers good storage and there is generous parking provision alongside. A small dog kennel with run now finds use as a handy log store. Set within the yew hedge, a gate provides access to the separate paddock. Screened from the drive by a mixed hedge, there is a small orchard of apple and damson trees, a greenhouse and pond with wild irises. It's a great area for children and dogs with space for rest and relaxation.
