About The Property

Looking for a character-filled country home with beautifully established gardens, flexible living space and a lovely rural setting in West Wales? This attractive stone-built property in the hamlet of Tregroes, near Llandysul, combines original features, generous accommodation and a striking garden room extension, all within easy reach of Cardigan Bay and the Ceredigion coastline

Tucked away within the small hamlet of Tregroes near Llandysul, this attractive detached stone property offers a lovely mix of traditional charm and practical modern living. Full of character features including exposed beams, wooden flooring, sash-style windows and fireplaces, the house has evolved over time to create a warm and versatile family home with beautifully maintained gardens surrounding it.

The approach to the property immediately sets the tone, with gated parking positioned to the rear providing space for approximately two to three vehicles. The stone exterior gives the house plenty of kerb appeal, while mature planting and landscaped gardens soften the setting and create colour and interest throughout the grounds.

The gardens are a real feature here. Carefully planned and well established, they wrap around the property with paved seating areas, shaped lawns, mature shrubs, flowering borders and tucked-away corners to sit and enjoy the surroundings. The rear garden in particular feels incredibly private, with the impressive garden room extension opening directly onto the outside space through wide glazed doors.

The accommodation flows well and offers flexibility depending on requirements. Entering into the hallway, doors lead through to the principal ground floor rooms. The living room is full of character, with exposed ceiling beams, timber flooring and a wood burning stove set within the fireplace creating a cosy focal point. Dual aspect windows allow plenty of natural light while maintaining the cottage feel that runs throughout the home.

The kitchen is a particularly sociable space, combining fitted units with room for dining and everyday family life. Exposed stonework and beams continue the character theme, while the layout provides a practical working kitchen with ample storage and worktop space. There is enough room here for informal dining and entertaining, making it very much the heart of the house.

One of the standout spaces is undoubtedly the superb garden room extension positioned to the rear. Designed with vaulted ceilings, exposed timber trusses and extensive glazing, this room connects beautifully with the gardens and brings the outside in throughout the seasons. Currently used as an additional sitting and workspace, it could easily adapt to a range of uses including studio space, hobbies room or further family living accommodation. The natural light in this room is exceptional and the outlook across the gardens is particularly attractive.

Also on the ground floor is a useful study positioned to the front of the property, ideal for home working or additional reception use. A utility room provides further practical storage and laundry facilities, while a ground floor shower room adds flexibility for guests or multi-generational living.

The first floor continues the same welcoming feel found downstairs. The landing itself is bright and airy, leading to three bedrooms along with an additional room currently used as a dressing room but equally suited as a nursery, study or hobby room.

The principal bathroom is generously sized and full of personality, featuring exposed beams, soft blue tones and space for both everyday family use and relaxation. The bedrooms each enjoy pleasant outlooks over the surrounding gardens and countryside, with a calm and comfortable feel throughout.

There is also a useful attic room located above the study that adds another useful space to the property and could work well for storage etc

Externally, the gardens are clearly a labour of love and offer a variety of different areas to enjoy throughout the day. The paved seating areas sit perfectly alongside the lawns and planting, while mature hedging and trees help create a real sense of privacy and shelter. There is also useful outdoor storage and greenhouse space for keen gardeners.

The location in Tregroes provides a rural setting while still being convenient for nearby amenities. Llandysul is only a short drive away and offers shops, cafes, schooling and everyday facilities, while the wider West Wales coastline and beaches around Cardigan Bay remain within easy reach for days by the sea, coastal walks and exploring the surrounding countryside.

Properties combining this level of character, mature gardens and flexible accommodation are increasingly hard to find, particularly in such an appealing rural setting. Viewing is highly recommended to appreciate the atmosphere, space and lifestyle on offer
