Description

53 Kent Road is a charming Grade II Listed semi-detached villa, situated within the highly desirable Owens Conservation Area in central Southsea. Built in 1844, the property displays many of the distinctive architectural features associated with this renowned Portsmouth architect, including attractive elevations, multi-pane sash windows and impressive high ceilings.

Currently arranged as office accommodation, the property provides a series of well-proportioned cellular office suites together with WC facilities, a kitchenette and generous on-site parking to both the front and rear.

Extending to just under 3,500 sq ft (325.16 sq m), the accommodation is arranged over four floors. The lower ground floor comprises three individual rooms currently used for storage, along with a former coal room, kitchenette and WC facilities. The ground floor features a glazed reception entrance leading into a central hallway which provides access to three spacious rooms presently configured as office space.

The first and second floors offer similar cellular office accommodation, including a larger room currently utilised as a boardroom/meeting space. Throughout the building, rooms benefit from excellent natural light via multi-pane windows, together with carpeted flooring and modern LED lighting.

Externally, the property benefits from a large tarmac parking area to the front, accessed directly from Kent Road.

Side access leads to the rear of the property where there is a garage/outbuilding and substantial additional parking.

Ideally located close to Palmerston Road's main shopping precinct, the property offers excellent potential either as a self-contained office headquarters or, subject to the necessary planning consents, a beautiful family home. Southsea seafront is within a short walk, along with excellent private schooling and the many restaurants, bars and cafés that make this one of Southsea's most fashionable areas.

The property also boasts a fascinating piece of literary history, having previously been owned by Arthur Conan Doyle, best known for creating the iconic detective Sherlock Holmes.
