Local Information

Ty Hebog is situated within the small rural community of Llanddona. It is a mile to the sandy beach to the east side of Red Wharf Bay which is a quieter and undeveloped area of the Bay and popular with locals. It is well known for its many bridleways and footpaths and a perfect spot to explore the east side of the Island.

The renowned seaside town of Beaumaris is about 2 miles distant, with its historic Edward 1st Castle, Victorian Gaol and Courthouse. There is also a Pier from where the children can catch crabs or take one of many cruises along the Menai Strait. Beaumaris also has an excellent selection of Hotels and restaurants as well as a selection of small locally owned bespoke shops.

The town of Menai Bridge is about 6 miles away and has a Waitrose and many other small interesting retailers as well as a Michelin restaurant. It gives easy access to the A55 which connects North Wales to the North West of England and the national motorway systems.

Over the bridge is the City of Bangor which provides most local amenities to include several large superstores.
