SITUATION

Dowland is a small and quiet rural hamlet, lying close the village of Iddesleigh, which is just over a mile away. The village has an ancient church and a highly regarded inn, the Duke of York, which is renowned for its fine food and ales. Winkleigh, Dolton and Hatherleigh offer a wider range of facilities and are within easy driving distance. The larger town of Okehampton lies approximately 12 miles distant, located on the fringes of the Dartmoor National Park and offering a more comprehensive range of shops and services including three supermarkets, primary and secondary schooling. From the town, the A30 dual carriageway is easily accessible via a direct link east to Exeter and the M5 and west to Cornwall and Plymouth. Okehampton Train Station also links to Exeter and beyond.

DESCRIPTION

A delightful Edwardian former vicarage, offered in excellent order and set within private, secluded gardens and grounds of approximately 2.29 acres. This fine West Country residence seamlessly blends original period features with modern fittings., The elegant, well-proportioned accommodation features two classic reception rooms and a spacious, social kitchen/dining/family room with direct access to the gardens. Upstairs, five generous double bedrooms are served by five well appointed bath/shower rooms. A particular feature of the property is its income potential. This includes a detached holiday cottage (The Old Stables) currently arranged as one self-catering cottage, but divided over two floors and connected via an internal staircase with individual apartments (The Shippon and The Hayloft). Alongside this, although not currently let by the current vendors, is further income potential via a charming barrel-top wagon (Zingaro) with a dedicated shower facility. Guests enjoy premium leisure amenities housed in an adjacent building, featuring a hot tub and sauna. The delightful, secluded grounds wrap around the property, offering extensive lawns and seating areas, a highly productive vegetable and soft fruit garden with a workshop, double garage and outbuildings, together with an area of private woodland.
