Location

Ross-on-Wye and Hereford offer a blend of historic charm, natural beauty, and a high quality of life, making them appealing locations to live and visit. Ross-on-Wye provides a picturesque outlook, market-town atmosphere, while

Hereford offers more city amenities and serves as the county's cultural hub.

Ross-on-Wye is often cited as one of the happiest places to live in Herefordshire, known for its strong community spirit, low crime rates, and picturesque surroundings. It offers a slower pace of life, ideal for nature lovers, retirees, and families. The town features an independent high street with unique shops, art galleries, cafes, and a twice-weekly market in the 17th-century Market House. Transport links are good via the M50 and A40 roads, although there is no local train station (the nearest are in Hereford and Gloucester).

On the Doorstep

The River Wye: As the birthplace of British tourism, the river is central to the town's appeal. Visitors can enjoy leisurely riverside walks, hire a canoe or kayak, or take a scenic boat trip.

The Prospect Gardens: Located behind St. Mary's Church, this public garden offers panoramic views of the River Wye's horseshoe bend, the surrounding countryside, and even the Black Mountains on a clear day.

Goodrich Castle: Just a few miles away, this is one of the finest and best-preserved medieval castles in England, offering fascinating history and spectacular views from the battlements.

Symonds Yat: A short distance away, this area features a dramatic viewpoint, the opportunity to spot peregrine falcons, red kites and numerous outdoor activities like walking and rock climbing.

Forest of Dean: This ancient woodland, a hub for outdoor activities, is easily accessible and offers extensive walking and cycling trails, Go Ape high ropes courses, and attractions like Puzzlewood and Clearwell Caves.
