The internal layout remains remarkably coherent, reflecting the thought given to the house by its original owner, an architect who designed it some fifty years ago.

The sitting room and dining room are connected by a shared engineered oak floor, allowing the two spaces to work together while retaining a degree of separation. The sitting room has a curved bay window overlooking the front garden, French doors opening onto the rear garden and an open fire set within a brick hearth. The dining room is an appealing room with a deep square bay designed around a family-sized dining table. Built-in seating occupies the bay and looks towards the garden pond. A separate study, with built-in shelving and cabinets, also overlooks the gardens.

The kitchen/breakfast room has a walk-in pantry and a tiled floor, with a central island incorporating a breakfast bar. Shaker-style units surround a Belfast sink positioned beneath a window looking into the front garden, while integrated appliances include an induction hob. A door leads directly to the side garden.

The first-floor landing gives access to all four bedrooms and a useful walk-in store room/linen cupboard. This could potentially be adapted to create an en suite shower room for bedroom 2. The principal bedroom has a wall-to-wall window providing a broad outlook up the garden. Bedroom 2 has a fitted wardrobe and is double aspect, with views to the south and west. The house bathroom includes both a corner shower and freestanding bath, together with a heated towel rail.

Outside

A private lane crossing the village green meets a leafy drive that follows the line of the front garden, a generous area of lawn with shrubs and trees, including a beautiful copper beech. It is enclosed by hedging and borders the village green.

The drive sweeps across the front of the house, providing a turning and parking area, before continuing along the northern boundary to the detached brick-and-pantile garage. The garage has an electric door, power and light, together with a south-facing window.

Immediately beside the house is a paved terrace with an external tap. Beyond it, a gravel garden provides a sheltered setting for a wildlife pond, with cascading water centred on a stone lion's head.

The garden continues beyond this area, with grassed paths winding between mature trees and established shrubbery. Stone steps rise to the upper part of the garden, where the planting gives way to a broad stretch of lawn running to the boundary with open countryside. A summer house sits at the far end, looking back across the lawn and providing a secluded space for family use. The gardens are enclosed by a combination of hedging and fencing.

Environs

Norwood House lies at the heart of Askham Richard, set back from the village street behind the expansive village green and duck pond. The village has a primary school, a Grade II listed church with a Norman doorway and a garden centre with a coffee shop. Askham Bog Nature Reserve is also nearby.

The setting is distinctly rural, with open countryside surrounding the village, yet its position west of York makes the city readily accessible. The Designer Outlet is within easy reach, while York provides a railway station, extensive shopping, restaurants and a choice of highly regarded private schools. The A1(M) is approximately 10 miles from the property, providing access north and south, with Leeds beyond.

Directions

From the village green, take the lane alongside the weeping willow, passing the village pond. Continue along a private drive and Norbury House can be found on the left hand side.
